REUNION OF THE 110th P. V. I.

Held at Tyrone Last Week A Large Number Present.

JAMES KREPS PRES.

Of the Association for the Ensuing Year. A History of this Fighting Regiment Published.

MEET AGAIN NEXT YEAR IN TYRONE

At the twenty-fourth annual reunion of the One Hundred and Tenth regiment held in Tyrone last Friday James T. Kreps, of Milesburg, was elected president for the ensuing year. It was voted to hold next year's reuniona in Tyrone. As we have a great many subscribers who would be interested to know something of this brave lot of boys we publish the history of the regiment. It is as follows:

Early in the summer of 1861, J. Y. James of Warren, received authority from the War Department to organize a brigade to consist of three regiments Recruiting was commenced in August and about the 1st of September a camp of rendezvous and instruction was organized at Huntingdon and named Camp Crossman. About the first of December the troops occupying this camp were transferred to Camp Curtin at Harrisburg, the arrangement for a brigade broken up and independent regiments were organized from them, the 110th being as follows: A and H, Tyrone; B and D, Huntingdon county; C, Blair and Bedford counties; E, F. G. and I, Philadelphia; and K, in Centre and Clearfield counties. William D. Lewis, of Philadelphia; was the first colonel; James Crowther, of Tyrone, lieutenant colonel; and John C. Johnson of Philadelphia, major. On the 2nd of January, 1862, the regiment left Camp Curtin and proceeded by rail to Hagerstown, Md., whence it made a forced march to Hancock, the enemy under Stonewall Jackson at that time threatening the place. The men were immediately armed and at midnight of the 4th it reported for duty to Gen. E. W. Lander, commander of the Union forces at that point. On the morning of the 5th troops were formed to resist the crossing of the enemy who had already approached the town on the opposite side of the Potomac. After considerable shelling at long range, Jackson withdrew and pushed on to Romney, that being his real objective.

Here the 110th was assigned to Tyler's brigade, Lander's division, Banks' corps; subsequently the second corps of Pope's army. On the 2nd of March Gen. Lander died and was succeeded in command by Gen. Shields, and the regiment after guarding a bridge on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and encamping at Paw Paw tunnel, moved on the 8th of March to Martinsburg and on to Winchester. Then followed the severe campaign in Shenandoah Valley under Shields, the 110th being especially complimented for gallantry in action by General Shields in his official report. A month later the division moved for Fredericksburg, crossing the mountains into Luray Valley, then across Blue Ridge, skirmishing on the way with Ashby's cavalay. At Fredericksburg the division was formed into four brigakes, the 110th being assigned to Col. Carroll's brigade which became a part of McDowell's corps. McDowell was soon ordered to the support of Banks and Fremont in the Shenandoah Valley, who were opposing Stonewall Jackson. On reaching the Luray Valley, Shields' division was ordered to Port Republic where Jackson's advance was met and the Union troops suffered a repulse. The 110th's loss was heavy in both these engagements.

With the brigade the regiment retired to Cloud's Mills near Alexandria where it remained within the defences of Washington city for several weeks. Upon the organization of the army of Northern Virginia, under General Pope the brigade now a part of Rockett's division of McDowell's corps moved to Warrenton where it remained until the close of July. It then moved forward to Culpepper, took part in the battle of Cedar mountain, and had an active part in the famous Pope campaign throughout. The 110th did not take part in the Antietam campaign, but remained in the defences of Washington at Arlington Heights. It participated in the battle of Fredericksburg in December, 1862.

When, on December 20, Colonel Lewis resigned, Lt. Col. Crowther was advanced to colonel, D. M. Jones who had been advanced to major and wounded at Bull Run, was advanced lieutenant colonel; and Capt. Isaac Rogers to major. Early in 1863 after much hard service and great loss the regiment was consolidated into six companies. It was engaged at Chancellorsville in the latter part of April, 1863, where Col. Crowther was killed and Lt. Col. Jones was taken prisoner, the ranks of the regiment suffering heavily. At Gettysburg the regiment was in the hottest of the fight in front of Little Round Top, where it again suffered heavy loss. Lt. Col Jones losing his left leg, which made it necessary for him to retire from the service. He died in 1877 from consumption as a result of this wound. Maj. Rogers then succeeded to the command of the regiment. It was active in the campaign in Virginia after Gettysburg and finally went into winter quarters at Brandy Station.

Early in January the regiment re-enlisted, and with its brigade was transferred to Hancock's second corps. Major Rodgers, who had been made lieutenant colonel, was now promoted to colonel. The 110th was active in the Wilderness campaign, was in the midst of the Petersburg siege, at the front always in the hard service of the Army of the Potomac down to the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. On the 12th of May, 1864, in a charge on the rebels works, when an entire division of the rebel army was captured, Col. Rodgers was mortally wounded. After Rodgers, E. E. Lewis and J. T. Hamilton rapidly succeeded to the command of the regiment, both or whom were wounded and retired, B. F Stewart succeeding to colonel. In the summer of 1864 the 115th regiment was merged into the 110th, the latter regiment retaining its organization.

The 110th was mustered into service October 24, 1861. Re-enlisted January 4, 1864. Mustered out of service June 28 1865. Total enrollment 1475. Total loss 607. Killed and died of wounds 113. Died of diseases or accidents 79. Wounded in action 298. Captured or missing 127. There are at present only about 150 of the regiment living.

Great Men's Meeting.

On Sunday afternoon Dr. Feltwell of Altoona talked to the men of Bellefonte on "Social Purety." The meeting was held in the Court House and the crowd of men that attended this meeting on this disagreeable afternoon, was wonderful. The Doctor knew what he was talking about and brought the men face to face with this subject in a clear intelligent manner. A quartet of railroad men of Altoona accompanied Dr. Feltwell and sang several beautiful selections at the meeting. Christy Smith's orchestra and played for the men during the sacred concert. It was indeed a successful meeting and no doubt but much good was accomplished by having this gentleman with us. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. It is their intention to have a meeting like this the first Sunday in every month during the winter. Mr. Edwin F. Garman one of the directors of the Association has very kindly offered them the use of the Opera House for the December meeting. This place will comfortaply seat every man and it is to be hoped the crowd will be so great that an overflow meeting will have to be held. The next speaker will be one of great prominence in the Evangelistic work. His name will be announced later.

Moro Prince with Slave Calls on the President.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Prince Sanfaluna, a Moro, diminutive, swarthy and 17, presented himself at the executive offices of the White House Saturday and was received cordially by President Roosevelt.

The Prince was dressed in a bright yellow jacket and white tight-fitting trousers, with a red leather sash hung over his right shoulder supporting a large gold badge of his office as head man of the Moro tribe of the Island of Mindanao in the Philippine group.

The suite of the Prince consisted of an interpreter dressed in pink and a slave in blue.

The Prince presented the President with a double-edged kris, a dangerous looking weapon in a white wooden shielh. The kris had been in the family of the Prince for 280 years and was the property of his father, Datto Ali, who was killed by American soldiers, two years ago. The Prince traces his ancestry to Mohammed —77 generations back. He is returning to the Philippines from a visit to the Jamestown Exposition.

175,000 Majority For Sheatz

Old Pennsylvania Rolls Up Her Large Majority As In Days Of Former Victories.

Shenck-Chambers Defeated.

Philadelphia, November 6th.—Estimated returns from the sixty-seven counties of Pennsylvania give John O Sheatz, republican, of Philadelphia, a plurality of 175,000 for State Treasurer over John G. Harman, democrat. Sheatz made heavy gains in nearly every county over the vote of William H. Berry, who was elected Treasurer on a fusion ticket two years ago but fell behind the vote polled by William L. Mathues, republican, elected Treasurer in 1903.

"I'm a crowing for Sheatz."

Philadelphia, November 6.—State Treasurer Elect John O Sheatz, in a statement said:

"With a heart full of gratitude for the confidence placed in me by the people of Pennsylvania, in electing me treasurer of this great commonwealth I thank them sincerely and assure them I shall be true to the trust reposed in me."

The election is over and while Col. Chambers was defeated for District Attorney and Hayes Schenck for Prothonotary, John O. Sheatz was elected Treasurer of Pennsylvania over John Harman the Democratic Candidate by a handsome majority of over 175,000. Arthur Kimport and William Runkle are certainly to be congratulated on their extra ordinary majorities. Below we give the complete official returns from Centre county.

CHESTER R. STRAW KILLED.

A Resident of Julian Killed on the Mountain by a P. R. R. Engine.

Chester R. Straw, of Julian, Centre county, formerly a conductor of Altoona and Logan Valley railway company's lines in this city, met death on the Pennsylvania railroad a short distance west of Altoona early Sunday morning by being struck by Manhattan Limited train No. 22, as the flyer was coming east to Altoona. He was a brakeman running out of Walls and it is supposed that he got down from his train, which had stopped, and stepped in front of the express. The body was brought to Altoona.

Straw came east with a train from Walls early Saturday morning and he left here later in the day with his crew with a train for Walls. A stop was made at GY tower, just east of Gallitzin and it is supposed that in getting down off the car he was riding, Manhattan Limited, train No. 22, which was running late, rounded the curve and struck him before he noticed its approach in time to get out of its way. He was instdntly killed as he was injured about the head and body, the right leg crushed, and the left one broken in several places. The body was brought to Altoona on an engine at 6.30 o'clock and placed in the company's morgue. Later it was given over to Undertakers Lafferty & John to prepare for burial.

Chester R. Straw was a son of Philip and Jennie Straw, of Julian, Pa., and was born in Centre county on December 23rd, 1889. He was employed about his home until two years ago when he came to this city and secured employment as a conductor on the lines of the Altoona and Logan Valley railway company. He worked about two weeks when was taken down with typhoid fever and returned home. He remained at Julian until eight months ago when secured employment in the shops at Braddock where he worked until two months ago when he was tranferred to the Pittsburg division as a brakeman, with headquarters at Wall. He was an attendant at the United Brethren church and was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and Pennsylvania Railroad Relief Association and the Haworth Burial Association of Philipsburg. He is survived by his parents, six sisters and four brothers as follows: William, of Philipsburg; George, of Wall; Gordon, of Altoona; Earl, Bessie, Olive, Edna, Elva, Mabel and Verda all at home. The remains were taken to Julian on the 7.20 o'clock train Monday morning where services where conducted in the United Brethren church at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the Cut cemetery.

Singizer—Woodring.

A very pretty home wedding took place Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Ex-Sheriff Daniel W. Woodring on East Howard street. The contracting parties were his daughter, Miss Sarah Adaline Woodring, and Amos Montgomery Singizer, of Renova. The parlor was prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums, and before a mound of flowers and fern Rev. J. Allison Platts said the words that made them man and wife. The beautiful ring ceremony was used which is always very impressive. The bride was attired in a gown of Paris muslin and carried a bouquet of blooming flowers. She made a very attractive appearance and was greatly admired by the little company present, consisting of only the near relatives of the bride and groom. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast took place consisting of everything that would appease the appetite. The bride is one of Bellefonte's best and brightest of young ladies who is well qualified to assume the duties of her own household. She has a large circle of friends who will wish her all the happiness that can come from a union of that kind. The groom is an employe in the Pennsylvania railroad shops at Renova, and holds a very important position. He is an exemplary young man and stands high in the community in which he resides. The couple is well mated, and their is no question but what their journey through life will be a pleasant and successful one. The bride received quite a number of handsome and valuable presents, showing the high regard in which she is held by her friends. They left in the afternoon for a short wedding tour, after which they will make their home in Renova.

ON TRAIL OF MURDERER

It is Now Believed the Murderer was a Renova Man

DETECTIVES AT WORK

A Suspect who was Last Seen with the Little Victim Said to Have Been Arrested in Emporium

REWARD HAS BEEN INCREASED $2,000

A most dastardly and fiendish crime was committed at Renovo some time last Tuesday night, which has greatly excited the people of that place, and which has been almost the sole topic of conversation in that city.

Never in the history of the town probably, have the people of Renova been so worked up as last Wednesday morning, when the discovery was made that little Mary Donley, the interesting and pretty nine year old daughter of Michael J. Donley who is employed as a machinist in the railroad shops, had been cruelly outraged and then strangled to death by some heartless fiend or fiends in human form.

Little Mary, with her father and mother and other members of the family attended the wedding of Miss Nora Donley, the girl's aunt, which took place in St. Joseph's Catholic church. After the ceremony a reception was tendered the couple at the home of Mary's Grandmother, on Thirteenth street, near the river. After the wedding dinner, Mary remained at home of her grand-mother, and in the evening at 5.45 o'clock, having occasion to go in the yard in the rear of the house, passed out the back door. She had no hat or coat on. As the girl did not return after the lapse of fifteen or twenty minutes, the family began to look for her and called her name but she could not be found. The aid of neighbors was enlisted and the search was continued without success. The news of the girl's mysterious disappointment soon spread and by 10 o'clock the entire populace was aroused, and all who could assisted in the search. At 12 o'clock the church bells of the town were rung for the purpose of enlisting still more volunteers in search for the girl. Every out building and stable or other place in the town to where the girl might have been carried was thoroughly ransacked, while different parties of men with lanterns and torches searched the woods. At 1 o'clock the fire alarm whistle at the shops was tooted, and excitement at this time ran high. It is estimated that at least 1,000 men and boys, and not a few women, were engaged in the search.

Shortly before 2 o'clock Wednesday the ringing of the church bells again announced that the girl had been found—but alas, she was dead. Her lifeless and cold body was discovered lying along the river bank at a point near Seventeenth street in the extreme lower end of the city by Sylvester Sanders Bisine Brown and Peter Wilmee. The body lay partly down the river bank, about fifteen feet from the water. An examination showed that the girl had been brutally outraged and then strangled to death, the marks of the fiend's fingers being plainly visible about her neck. There was a scratch on the right side of the eye and a bruise on the forehead above the right eye. The girl was lying on her back with one knees raised up. An old newspaper had been placed over her face. The spot where her body was found was about five blocks from her grandmother's home where she disappeared.

There is still great interest manifested in the reports concerning the murder of little Mary Donnelly, which occurred at Renovo on Tuesday night of this week. Rumors of various kinds were rife in Lock Haven Wednesday evening and the local police were particularly active in their search for the slayer.

Early in the evening three officers drove up to Queen Run to intercept a woodsman who, it is said, acted strangely. It appears that this individual was in company with another woodsman who was bringing a bateau down the river from Westport. The boat was to be used on Smith's log drive which is now working along the river east of here. The man in question was riding with the party who was in charge of its delivering. In some manner the officers missing the man at Queens Run, but later two other policemen rounded him up at the Irvin house.

He was taken to the police station and closely questioned, after which he was discharged, as the officers were satisfied he was not the man wanted.

It is now the theory that the murder was committed by a Renovo man. In fact it is given out that a certain man is under suspicion and may be arrested at any time. Detectives on the case are reticent, but none will deny that they have suspicions who the guilty party is.

It is further stated that the child was seen at 10 o'clock in company with the suspected man, who has left Renovo.

Captain George Vernes and a number of Pennsylvania railroad policemen are in that place making investigations. Aside from the Renovo officers there are detectives from Buffalo, Pittsburg, Philadelphia and other points. All are anxious to capture the guilty party and receive the credit for the shrewd work and incidentally receive the big reward.

The reward for the capture of the murderer has been increased to $2,000 which is surely an incentive for sleuths to put forth their best efforts. The amounts offered are $500 by the borough of Renovo, $500 by the county commissioners, the same amount was subscribed by the shop men and James A. Dowling and J. H. Snyder of the Renovo Evening News succeeded in raising an additional $500 among the business men.

Five persons were arrested Wednesday at Renovo and all were required to give an account of their whereabouts on the night of the murder. Some are inclined to believe that the fiendish work was done by a tramp, while others believe that boys were responsible for the murder. It is known, however, that officers are after a suspect, who some believe is the guilty party. They refuse to divulge any particulars regarding him.

That certain other persons are under suspicion is borne out by the fact that Chief of Police Michael Foley has sent out this description to the police of various cities: "A 10-year-old girl was criminally assaulted and murdered here Tuesdry evening. Suspects are a tall and short man, both dark complexion. Short man has heavy head of hair. Please keep on the look-out for suspicious characters and place under arrest and wire me.

M. Foley, Chief of Police"

There is no diminution in the sensational reports being circulated in connection with the murder of little Mary Donley at Renovo, but they do not emanate from trustworthy sources, and hence no credence can be placed in them. The people generally are still eager to hear the latest news in regard to the sad affair, and of course every rumor is taken up and quickly spreads.

Interests in the matter was greatly intensified last evening when Fred Jackson, who was arrested at Howards, Cameron county, was brought to the Lock Haven jail on the 6 o'clock train. With him were the other six men who were arrested at Renovo, whose names, as recorded at the jail, are Frank McKeagh. William Brown, William Martin, James Carey, Patrick Coughlin and Michael O,Shaughennsey. The prisoners were in charge of Railroad Officers Jacob F. Lehman and Frank S. Stryker, and all were handcuffed together. Sergeant McNerney met the party at the station. A large crowd of men, women and children followed the prisoners to the jail, but no demonstration of any kind was made. They were hustled along at a pretty rapid gait and by the time the crowd following had reached the jail the prisoners had disappeared inside. Jackson was placed in the steel cage on the second floor, while the other men were locked up in the ordinary cells.

When the murderer of the little girl laid the body down on the dump pile, he placed a piece of newspaper over the face and arranged the skirts so as to give rise to the belief that the crime was committed at the point where the body was found. It might have been possible for the assassin to have carried the body there and then mingled with the crowd of searchers. To this end the authorities have been working. One rumor in this connection is to the effect that Mrs. Frank Ziegler, who resides on Fourteenth street, while she was in her rear yard feeding her chickens, heard a scream, evidently that of a child. She says it was about 6 o'clock, as near as she can remember.

The appearance of the little body would bring pity from the most hard-hearted creature on earth. The body is dressed in a neat white gown, with a yoke of lace and several flounces of lace on the skirt. Lace turnovers on the sleeves and a rosette of white baby ribbon bedecked the left breast. A bow of white ribbon was attached to the hair. White stocking and slippers were used in dressing the feet. The face looks very natural, with the exception that the cheeks, were slightly bloated. The bruise on the right forehead was prominent, but the scratch near the right eye was badly discernible.

A Dangerous Practice.

An order was issued by C. A. Preston, superintendent of the middle division of the Pennsylvania railroad which prohibits employees from stepping on the footboards of engines, either on the pilot or tender, while the locomotive is moving toward thim. The reason given for the order is that it is a very dangerous practice and must be discontinued at once.

This foolhardy practice is followed daily by railroad men in the Bellefonte yards, and the wonder is that some of them have not been killed by missing their footing.

Retired at Ten.

He (after an elopement from a rural summer resort)—My dear, you told me the night I proposed that your father had retired from business, but I now learn he is a peanut vender.

She—No, I didn't do anything of the sort. You remarked about half past 10 o'clock at night that you supposed my father was in the city immersed in business, and I said he had retired. He always goes to bed at 10.

MY CREED.

Whoever was begotten by pure love
And came desired and welcome into life
Is of immaculate conception.
He whose heart is full of tenderness and truth,
Who loves mankind more than he loves himself,
And cannot find room in his heart for hate,
May be another Christ. We all may be
The saviors of the world if we believe
In the divinity which dwells in us
And worship it and nail our grosser selves,
Our tempers, greeds and our unworthy aims
Upon the cross. Who giveth love to all,
Pays kindness for unkindness, smiles for frowns
And lends new courage to each fainting heart
And strengthens hope and scatters joy abroad,
He, too, is a redeemer—son of God.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

She Had Him That Time.

It was the same old story of a man who refused to tell his wife the outcome of a business transaction in which naturally she took a deep interest.

"No," he sneered, "I won't tell you. If I did you'd repeat it. You women can never keep a secret."

"John," said the woman quietly, "have I ever told the secret about the solitaire engagement ring you gave me eighteen years ago being paste?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Polite Planter.

"I was stopping with a Mississippi planter for a few days," said the colonel, "and one afternoon I fell asleep in a hammock on the veranda. I had slept for more than an hour when I heard the step of the planter, and a minute later he stood over me and said:

"'Kurnel, would yo' oblige me by waking up?'

"'Certainly,' I replied as I roused up.

"'And now would you oblige me by walking around to the rear of the house?'

"He walked with me, and I noticed that the sky was growing dark and that there was a peculiar looking cloud in the southwest. In the rear of the house was what I took for an outdoor cellar, but when we reached it the planter pointed and said:

"'And now if yo' will kindly enter our cyclone proof cellar I shall esteem it a great favor.'

"I entered to find all the family there, and two minutes later a cyclone came whirling along, unroofed the house and tore up several trees 100 years old. I always wondered why the planter didn't yell at me and swear, but his way was the gentle and courteous way."

Why the Plaster Didn't Stick.

For the first time in his life Daddy O'Alligan felt very ill, and the doctor had sent a porous plaster to ease the pain in his back.

"Well, Daddy," said the doctor next day, "did the plaster do you any good?"

"Oi can't say that it has helped me much up to now, but you know Oi only took it last night."

"Took it? What do you mean?"

"Mane? Oi mane that Oi chewed and chewed for half an hour on the ould thing, and then Oi had to send it down hull. Seems to me if they'd bile the plasters a little more and not put so much pepper in they'd be easier to chew up and wouldn't scorch a body's insoide so."

What Papa Said.

His teacher was having a hard time explaining the geography lesson.

"Tommy, you can learn this if you make up your mind. It's not one bit smart to appear dull. I know that you are just as bright as any boy in the class. Remember, Tommy, where there's a will there's"—

"Aw," broke in Tommy, "I know all dat, I do! Me fadder's a lawyer, an' I've heard him say it lots o' times."

"You should not have interrupted me, but I am glad that your father has taught you the old adage. Can you repeat it to me?"

"Sure. Me fadder says dat where der's a will der's always a bunch o' poor relations."—Lippincott's.

Didn't Charge Them a Cent.

The ninth chapter of Matthew was under consideration by a class of boys, the chapter being read verse by verse and then questions asked by the teacher on the passages read. The account of the raising of Jairus' daughter concludes the chapter, and the last verse of the narrative is as follows: "And he charged them straitly that no man should know it and commanded that something should be given her to eat." The teacher asked in connection with this verse, "What did Christ command?" "That something should be given them to eat," was the immediate reply. "What did Christ charge them?" was the next question, when a brilliant youth exclaimed, "He didn't charge them a cent!"

The Butler Broke the News Gently.

On his return from an extended trip abroad an English squire was met at the steamship wharf by his old and trusted butler. Thinking it strange that the old man should have come to meet him, the squire asked if there was bad news.

"Yes, sir," replied the butler; "very bad news. The old magpie is dead, sir."

"What did the bird die of?"

"Too much horseflesh, sir."

"Too much horseflesh, John! Where did it get it?"

"The carriage horses, sir."

"What! Are they dead too?"

"Yes, sir. Died from overexertion drawing water the night of the fire."

"What fire?"

"The mansion, sir."

"You don't mean to say that the mansion is burned, John?"

"Yes, sir; it burned the night of the funeral, sir."

"Whose funeral?"

"Your poor mother's, sir."

"What, mother dead too?"

"Yes, sir; she never held her head up after your poor father died?"

"Great heaven! Father dead! I never heard a word of any of these misfortunes. What was the cause of my father's death?"

"Well, sir, it was this way. He received a telegram telling him that the ship had gone down that had the whole of his fortune on board, and the shock of it killed him."

"John, I am entirely ruined!"

"That you are, sir."

As He Understood It.

Little Johnny was hustled off to church Sunday morning with the admonition that if he could not remember the text he couldn't have that afternoon. At the dinner table he was asked the text of the sermon and said:

"Don't be afraid; you'll get the quilt."

The mother laughingly replied, "You must be mistaken, Johnny." But he was sure he was right. During the week the pastor called, when it was learned that the text was, "Fear not; the comforter will come."—Chicago Tribune.

Slightly Mixed.

A Kansas man and his family had gathered around the supper table, and all heads were bowed for him to ask a blessing when the telephone bell rang. The man answered it and, coming back to the table, again bowed his head, but again the telephone rang. He answered that call, then for the third time seated himself and, bowing his head, said, "Hello!"—Lippincott's.

A Cheerful Giver.

Bobby's father had given him a ten cent piece and a quarter, telling him he might put one or the other on the contribution plate on Easter Sunday.

"Which did you give, Bobby?" his father asked when the boy came home from church.

"Well, father, I thought at first I ought to put in the quarter, but then just in time I remembered, 'The Lord loveth a cheerful giver,' and I knew I could give the ten cent piece a great deal more cheerfully, so I put that in."

Testing His Competency.

A husky Irishman strolled into the civil service room where they hold physical examinations for candidates for the police force.

"Get your clothes off, and be quick about it," said the doctor.

The Irishman undressed. The doctor measured his chest and pounded his back.

"Hop over this rod," was the next command.

The man did his best, landing on his back.

"Double up your knees, and touch the floor with your hands."

He lost his balance and sprawled upon the floor. He was indignant, but silent.

"Now run around the room ten times. I want to test your heart and wind."

"I'll not," the candidate declared defiantly. "I'll stay single."

"Single?" inquired the doctor, puzzled.

"Single," repeated the Irishman, with determination. "Sure an' what's all this funny business got to do wid a marriage license, anyhow?"

He had strayed into the wrong bureau.—Everybody's.

Awful Veracity.

Some Scotchmen were dining, and after the toasts each contributed something to the entertainment. Dr. MacDonald was pressed to sing, but protested that he could not. "My voice is altogether unmusical," he explained. "I never sing." The company thought the doctor was modest and insisted. "Very well," he said at last. Long before he had finished his audience was uneasy. There was a painful silence as the doctor sat down, broken at length by the voice of a braw Scot at the end of the table. "Mon," he exclaimed, "your singin's no up to much, but your veracity's just awfu'!"

Was No Slouch.

A number of men were having a discussion as to who was the greatest inventor. Some said Edison, some Watt, some Morse, some one and some another. Finally a pawnbroker got in a word and said:

"Vell, chentlemens, dose vas gread peoples, but I tells you dot man vot invented interest vas no slouch."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Demoralized, but Not Scattered.

A soldier of Bates' division of the Confederate army, after the command had run two days from Nashville, had thrown away his gun and accouterments and, alone in the woods, sat down and commenced thinking—the first chance he had for such a thing. Pulling up his sleeves and looking at his legs and general physique, he thus gave vent to his feelings: "I am whipped, badly whipped, and somewhat demoralized, but no man can say I am scattered."

She Thought He Was Dead.

Maginnis had been ill for some time, and, like a great many invalids, he was somewhat irritable, and when things failed to meet his approval the next unfortunate who came within range was pretty apt to be reminded of it in a way far more forcible than polite. He lingered in this condition for several weeks, daily growing weaker, but still holding his own sufficiently to make things lively and more or less interesting for those about him. Finally one day when the family doctor called he met the long suffering Mrs. Maginnis coming out of the sickroom, and, rubbing his hands, he cheerfully remarked: "Ah, good morning, Mrs. Maginnis! How is our patient today?"

"It's dead the poor mon is, O'im afther thinkin', hivin rist his sowl!" was the resigned reply.

"You think he is dead? Don't you know whether he is or not?" demanded the doctor.

"Not fer shure," responded Mrs. Maginnis briskly, "but thin he bethrays ivery symptom of it. I wint into his room jist now, an' he didn't t'row anything at me!"—London Tit-Bits.

Snuff as Medicine.

"Oh, yes," said the tobacconist, as he tapped a jar filled with a cinnamon colored powder, "I sell an ounce or two of snuff occasionally—to the old, as a rule. The young will seldom look at snuff. And those who do use it impute medicinal virtues to it. Thus old fashioned watchmakers, gem cutters and tailors think that a pinch of snuff now and then improves the eyesight. They think it refreshes and fortifies weary eyes as a cup of tea refreshes and fortifies a weary brain. Others think snuff cures a cold. Others take it for the headache. Others still believe that it wards off contagion. Personally I believe that snuff taking is less harmful than smoking. Its effect, too, is pleasanter than the effect of smoking—it is a most soothing and fascinating effect once you get used to it—but the habit is untidy and therefore it can get no hold upon us in this aesthetic age."—Los Angeles Times.

Rescued a "Foxy" Squirrel.

A man in New York state who owns several fine cats stepped out of his house one day to see two of his feline possessions crouched in the grass, and equidistant between them sat a common striped squirrel, not daring to move a hair lest he invite the sharp claws of one or both of his enemies, but the anxious brown eyes rolled from side to side as he calculated his chances of escape between the two. The man walked on toward the squirrel, and when he came within jumping distance the squirrel seized his opportunity and leaped upon the man's trousers and ran nimbly to his shoulder. Then the man backed slowly toward a tree at no great distance from him. Again when within leaping distance the squirrel jumped into the tree and disappeared amid its branches.

No Joke to Him.

"That fellow," said Tete de Veau, "is always getting off the old joke about the difficulty of finding a woman's pocket."

"But, you know," L'Oignon explained, smiling, "he married a rich wife."—Los Angeles Times.

Poultry Keeping as its Taught at State College.

Last year the Pennsylvania State College instituted a special course of twelve weeks in poultry keeping. This is one of the five winter courses in agriculture which begin December 3 1907.

J. W. Clark, Cainsville, Ontario, has been selected to give special instruction in this subject. He has been engaged in the business for ten years and has won the leading prizes in live as well as dressed poultry in both Canada and New York. He has judged at the leading shows, being sent out each year by the Ontario and Dominion Governments. He has had several years' experience on the Ontario Institution staff lecturing on poultry husbandry.

Instruction in this course consists of lectures on general principals of breeding and feeding, the breeds of poultry, their origin, characteristics, care and management, diseases and parasites. Practical exercises will be given in dressing poultry caponizing, keeping records, judging, running incabators and brooders, and in the construction of colony houses and other poultry appliances. The course will be under the direction of Prof. T. I. Mairs.

Farmer's week at the college this winter from January 1 to 9 inclusive. There are thus four days of the last of the first week and four days of the first of the next week instead of three days in each week as last year. From reports already received a large attendance is expected.

The creamery and cheese course this winter will begin December 3, five weeks earlier than heretofore, and continue to February 26. At least one-half of each day is devoted to practical work in handling the cream from ninety farms. Prof. H. E. VanNorman has charge of these courses.

The destructive disease of the clover is known as "Black Mold," which causes the blackening of stems, petioles and leaves. The fungus has done serious damage in many fields. It attacks the older leaves on young plants and is quite common in the latter part of the season upon the second growth of clover. Prof. George C. Butz during his investigations has found no trace in Pennsylvania of the destructive disease of the south known as the "clover anthracnose," but he points out that there is no valid reason why it could not appear in this state as it has been found as far north has New York state. He suggests that farmers send specimens of diseased clover to the college so that its nature can be determined.

The Glee Club Concert.

The State College Mandolin and Glee Clubs entertained a fair sized audience at the Garman Opera House on Thursday evening. On account of so many parties and other social functions throughout the town the crowd at the theatre was small. The concert was all that could be desired and was greatly appreciated by all who were present. The club left this morning for Williamsport.

(By H. R. Whitcraft.)

State College, Pa., Nov. 2.—They are making housewives here—training girls for a womanhood that will have an influence for untold good upon this state and nation in generations to come.

In these days of higher education for women the tendency has been toward "trimmings" rather than a practical, deeper knowledge of those useful things a woman should know.

It was to meet this condition, and help remedy it, that the Pennsylvania State College established its department of home economics. The course is only in its infancy, but its work has already demonstrated that it has a future of usefulness second to no other department in the college.

In the four years of the course students are taught everything a woman should know in order to administer a household for the health, comfort and happiness of all its members. This is combined with a culture training which fits her for a high and useful position in society and teaches her how to get the most enjoyment out of life.

Living in a cozy cottage under the care and guidance of Miss Lovejoy and Miss Baugh, twenty-two girls are pursuing the studies which will in future years bring health and happiness and profit to them and others.

In the freshman year these studies are taken up: French, German, Latin, Greek, English, rhetoric and composition zoology, chemistry, solid geometry, ...teriology, sewing and music. In the ...ges the work is thorough and ...ttention is paid to rhetoric, and ...position. The chemistry studied is ...the chemistry of the furnace, the mill ...the dye house. It is the chemistry of the home.

...Sewing during the first year is by hand and the girl is taught drafting and making of garments. She works, during the freshman year, with light materials. The second year she takes up the heavy fabrics and designs and makes complete suits. In this connection she is taught the value of various cloths, their appropriate uses, how they are made and how to cut and make them up to the best advantage. The study of colors and their combinations forms an important part of this work, as does the designing of garments.

A "millinery laboratory" has been erected in an adjoining room, where the girls are taught to make hats in the same manner as they are dressed. They design and make color drawings of these head pieces and then fashion them after their own designs.

In physiology, hygiene and nutrition, home nursing and first aid to the injured are taught. Particular study is made of the preparation of foods for the sick and for infants. A "kitchen laboratory" is one of the most attractive features of the work. Here the girls are taught one of the most necessary accomplishments of a good housewife. They wear while in the kitchen a uniform consisting of a shirt-waist suit of light blue gingham, a large white apron with a bib and straps over the shoulders, and white cuffs. No ruffles or other trimmings are allowed.

Mrs. Waugh, the instructor, stands behind a table constructed in the form of a hollow square and is thus able to give personal attention to twenty-four girls along the outside. It is the intention to provide an individual electric cooker for each of the twenty-four in the near future. At present the cooking is done on a coal range.

Each girl is required to keep a system of accounts, in which she puts down all her expenditures. She is allotted a certain sum, imaginary, of course, during the school year. This household account is divided into three headings—foods, clothing and shelter. Expenditures under each are carefully entered. It is the intention to encourage very strongly this idea of book-keeping, because it is the only safe method of keeping even.

Beaux and belles of Stroudsburg and Monroe county in general, because they are to be found everywhere, will be interested in the new bill Representative Josiah M. Landis of Montgomery county has been requested to introduce in the legislature to govern the time the girl's best fellow must leave the lady of his choice and go home.

The bill requested, according to the Hatfield Times, provides for a curfew law for young men who overstay their welcome when paying a visit to the maidens of their choice. The request comes from a constituent in the form of a letter reading as follows: "I have noticed that you have been instrumental in getting us laws for common good. I trust you will be indulgent and pardon the great liberty I take in addressing you but I want to suggest a bill that will do an awful lot of good, not only to myself but to a lot of other girls. I have a gentleman friend whom I love very dearly, but he don't know when to go home. Every thing else I ask him he complies with, but when I ask him if he does not think it is time to go home h says he does not want to be away from me a single minute. Sometimes it take. him over an hour to kiss me good night When my papa spoke to him about it he said he'd bet he did the same when he was courting my mamma and papa laughed and said he supposed he did. I don't know what to do about it and thought you could help me. Can't you have a law passed making young men callers go home before midnight? Say you fix the hour at 11. If you will you ever so much oblige me. Yours very truly,—." The attitude of the bachelor members of the Legislature on the bill is watched with interest.

Fell From an Apple Tree.

T. S. Minary, the well known railroad man, fell from an apple tree in the yard of his home Saturday evening and painfully bruised his legs. On Thursday evening Mr. Minary picked a bushel of the apples from the tree and placed them on the back porch. Next morning he found that the apples had disappeared. The thief or thieves, after sampling the fruit, evidently decided it was one of first-class quality, so they came back late Friday night and shook several more bushels of the fruit from the tree and got away with it. Saturday evening Mr. Minary came to the conclusion that if he wanted what few apples remained it would be necessary to get them off the tree, but alas he tumbled down and is of the opinion that he wasn't to get this year's crop.—Lock Haven Democrat.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

The Doctor's Imagination.

"I have a good story on one of Washington's best known oculists," said a prominent clubman, addressing some friends in the billiard room of the Metropolitan club. "My eyes had troubled me for some months, and finally I went to see the doctor about them.

"After a thorough examination he said that the muscles were badly strained, and then he gave me a prescription for drops to be used in my eyes three times a day. When I left he gave me an appointment for that day week, as he said he could not examine my eyes for glasses until they were in their normal condition.

"Well, I mislaid that blessed prescription, and as I was particularly busy that week I had no time to get another copy. So in some trepidation I kept my second appointment.

"As the doctor examined my eyes I hesitated a moment about telling him I had not used the drops, when he took the words out of my mouth and the breath out of my body by remarking with pleased emphasis:

"'Your eyes are very much improved. That medicine which I gave you is certainly wonderful. It always has such prompt and satisfactory results.'

"It was all I could do to keep silent," concluded the speaker, laughing. "But I wasn't quite sure how he would take the joke. You see, he may not have a sense of humor."—Washington Star.

Comets In Olden Days.

People nowadays do not regard the comet as one of those signs that forerun the death or fall of kings, but the superstition was still current in the time of Queen Elizabeth, though, to the amazement of her courtiers, the queen calmly scorned it. It was also thought that if the sovereign would refrain from looking at the malignant celestial passerby no harm would come to her. On one occasion Elizabeth's attendants shut and curtained her windows, but her majesty, as might have been expected, with "a courage answerable to the greatness of her estate," caused them to be opened, crying as she looked up: "Jacta est alea—the die is cast!" Then, like King Knut on the seashore, she read her people a homily, asserting that her "steadfast hope and confidence were too firmly planted in the providence of God to be blasted or affrighted with those beams which either had no ground in nature whereupon to rise or at least no warrant in Scripture to portend the mishaps of princes."

Queen Elizabeth as an Ale Drinker.

There is an amusing letter written by the Earl of Leicester to Lord Burleigh as to the lack of sufficiently strong ale for the queen at Hatfield. "There is not one drop of good drink for her here. We were fain to send to London and Kenilworth and divers other places where ale was. Her own beer was so strong as there was no man able to drink it." Ale and bread were the chief items of the royal breakfast. The quantity of ale consumed by ladies at breakfast in those days was considerable, for in the reign of Henry VIII. the maids of honor were allowed for breakfast "one chet loafe, one manchet, two gallons of ale and a pitcher of wine." A Lady Lucy made a mighty tonic of the national brew. Her breakfast was a chine of beef; a loaf and a gallon of ale, and for her pillow meal a posset porridge, a generous cut of mutton, a loaf and a gallon of ale.—Westminster Gazette.

His Class.

The head of a large mercantile house received not long ago a letter from a millionaire banker in the west asking that the latter's son be placed in some business house where he could learn "things from the bottom up." The writer explained that his offspring was "no good at home."

Soon after the western millionaire received the following reply from his New York friend:

Dear Sir—Your hopeful has arrived. I have given him employment in my establishment at $6 a week with others of his class. One of these young men has just bought a $50,000 yacht, and another comes to the office in a $9,000 motor car. No doubt your son will find his surroundings congenial.

—Harper's Weekly.

A Bad Cast.

Mr. Lawhead—Why do you treat me so coldly? Why didn't you answer the note I wrote you last Thursday? Miss Brushley—Sir, I don't wish to have anything more to say to you. You began your note by saying you "thought you would drop me a line." I want you to understand that I'm not a fish.

An Illustration.

Little Harry—Pa, what's a foregone conclusion? Pa—Anything that's sure to follow something else. To give you an illustration, if I were to lock the drawer of my desk it wouldn't be twenty minutes before your mother would break it open for the purpose of finding out what I was trying to conceal.—Cleveland Leader.

Holding His Own.

Scattered through the pine clad mountains of California live some grizzly old miners whose dry wit is often amusing. After many years' absence a certain gentleman returned to the little mountain town that had been his birthplace. The first person he met was an old miner who had known him as a boy.

"Howdy, Tom?" he said as he shook hands. "How've you been getting along all these years?"

The old fellow shifted his quid of tobacco, spat into the dust, then said in the habitual drawl, "Waal, I didn't have a darn cent when I come here forty year ago, an' I'm holdin' my own."—Judge Library.

Body Exhumed

Edgar Nearhoff son of Mr. and Mrs. George Nearhoff of Taylor township, died on the morning of August 30th under what his parents claim were peculiar circumstances. He had been married less than two weeks previous to Miss Annie Marks, daughter of John Marks of Port Matilda. After spending a week or so at the home of the bridegroom's parents the young couple went to the home of the bride's father. The same evening young Nearhoff was taken violently ill and grew rapidly worse until his death followed the second morning thereafter

After his death the parents became suspicious of his having been poisoned and after the funeral they asked for an investigation but so far as the authorities could learn there was no reason to believe the young man died from any but natural results. Neither the parents nor the people of that community seem to have been satisfied, and through their instigation an order was issued to the coroner of Centre county from the state board of health to have the body exhumed and the case investigated.

Accordingly on Tuesday afternoon coroner P. S. Fisher, Dr. M. J. Locke and Dr. James A. Thompson of Port Matilda, accompanied by Col. E. R. Chambers, went to the Mt. Pleasant cemetery in Taylor township, exhumed the body and secured the stomach, which they brought to Bellefonte and later sent to State College to have the contents analyzed by a chemist.

So far as the eye could see there was nothing in the condition of the body or stomach that indicated anything in the shape of poison and it is probable nothing of such a character will be disclosed by the analysis. But it will set at rest the minds of the parents and the ugly rumors afloating through that community.

The New Lime Operation.

The Chemical Lime Co. composed of such enterprising business men as John Walker, John Olewine, A. C. Mingle, Archie Allison and Andrew McNitt have their lime operation, on Buffalo Run, almost ready for operation. Sometime ago they received two boilers from Pittsburg which after they had been set and ready for firing, an inspector came along and condemned them. The result was they were compelled to send the boilers back and get a new one from Williamsport This of course, delayed the time for starting several weeks. The new boiler, however, has been installed and it will only be but a few days until the wheels of this new industry will be set in motion, giving employment to a large number of men.

Two lime kilns have been erected, one of which has already been filled with stone and is now ready to have the match applied. The other kiln will be ready in a short time. The building containing the stone crusher is about eighty feet high and is quite an imposing structure. The elevated railroad, from the quarries to the kilns is substantially high, especially where the stone is put into the kilns. No money or labor has been spared to make this one of the finest plants of the kind to be found in the country. What we pride is more than anything else is that it is Bellefonte capital and the indications are that it is going to be a grand success. They have orders down on file that will take them some time to fill. This company has the very best stone to be found in this county which is an additional guarantee that the adventure will prove a good one.

Jail Cure Fails to Cool Girl's Love.

After being locked up in the Tombs in New Yorks two days and twice arrainged in court, Lena Seltner, the Philadelphia girl who was arrested because she eloped with her fiance, Mark Gallagher, also of the Quaker City Wednesday won from her mother the right to wed the man of her choice.

Mrs. Rose Seltner, her mother, was in the Tombs court, Wednesday, having come to try to induce her daughter to give up Gallagher.

Mrs. Seltner begged Magistrate Wahle to use his influence to induce Lena to go back home with her. The girl however was obdurate.

"A night in prison hasn't changed my mind," she said.

Mrs. Seltner wept when her daughter declared that she would not renounce her sweetheart, but finally gave her consent to the marriage.

A telegram was sent to Gallagher by the girl telling him to hurry over to New York and come to the court house at once.

Gallagher and the girl were hunting for a rabbi when the girl was arrested. They came to New York from Philadelphia several days ago, and he obtained a position as a window dresser. Both insisted that they had hunted in vain for a clergyman to marry them because of the difference in their religious beliefs.

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

THE RATTLER.

It Rarely Sounds Its Note of Warning Until Attacked.

Contrary to the general belief, the rattler rarely gives its characteristic note of warning until actually attacked. In fact, the sharp, vibrant ring of its terminal appendage is probably designed more to assist this very sluggish serpent to obtain its food than to sound defiance or warning. In the first place, serpents possess but the most rudimentary traces of auditory apparatus and are practically deaf, the deficiency in the sense of hearing being compensated for by an extreme sensitiveness of feeling which makes them aware of the approach of moving objects by the vibration of the ground.

Hunters, treading cautiously upon a soft carpet of moss or leaves to avoid alarming game, will often step close to or over a rattler without disturbing it or receiving warning, and while many snakes are seen and killed by them it is probable that a far greater number are passed by unnoticed. All snakes are timid and would rather run than fight, and the rattler is not inviting certain destruction by advertising its whereabouts in the brush.—Francis Metcalfe in Outing Magazine.

CAUGHT THE THIEF.

An Incident Which Illustrates Japanese Detective Methods.

Recently in the village of Taharamura, Japan, all the male inhabitants above the age of fifteen years were assembled in front of the local Shinto shrine at the call of the village chief. A thief had been making depredations in the local tobacco plantations, and the chief sought to discover him. Outlines of the feet of all the villagers were taken on sheets of paper, and then these were compared with the tracks left by the thief in the tobacco fields. Nothing resulted from this experiment. The next day the inhabitants were called together again. A great hole was dug in the ground, and a raging charcoal fire was built in it. All persons present were ordered to walk through the fire barefooted, it being declared that no person would be burned except the guilty one. All advanced to undergo the ordeal except one, Shukichi Shibata, a man of evil reputation. He declined to trust his feet to the redhot coals. Accordingly he was arrested and soon confessed his guilt.

FICTION AND FACT.

The Message In the Story Book and In Real Life.

In a magazine:

"I don't like you any more."

Harold Hoplite looked up at the quaint figure—a boy of six, with a mouth smeared with huckleberry pie.

Harold was glum.

"I don't like you any more."

"Why?"

"'Cause you made sister cry."

"Ethel cry! I didn't—I couldn't—make her cry."

"Well, she's crying now when you said nothing when you walked away. Why didn't you say by-by and kiss her when you're going away? I always do."

"I will! Right now!"

And Harold hastened back to make up the lovers' quarrel.

In real life:

"Say, sister gave me a piece of pie to come down and see if you'd gone and if you hadn't to try to get you back past where she was sitting on the porch getting ready to be crying."

"Oh!"—New York American.

The Spleen as Food.

In France and Italy many persons eat the spleen, what we call in French "ratte." I have eaten it myself. Generally from a pig it weighs about eight ounces, and it is situated on the right side of the pig, touching the liver. A spleen from a cow or bull weighs about two pounds, but is a little more spongy than the pig's spleen, which is the best. If some one should start the fashion we would after awhile pay 75 cents a portion in first class restaurants, especially if some person of mark should start the habit.—Chef Valere Braguehais in Letter to New York Tribune.

STATE PAWNSHOPS.

French Rate Is 7 Per Cent—Sometimes No Interest Is Charged.

With none of the timidity or hesitation or the shamefaced aspect of our user of pawnshops does the Parisian perform his journey to the money lender. Far from feeling, after the door has closed behind him, that he is in the country of the enemy, the Frenchman can have his patriotic ardor at its highest, for over the pawnshop flies the tricolor of France instead of the gilded balls, and the guard at the door is a helmeted, white gloved republican guard. The customary whispering as the borrower exchanges goods for cash is unknown. Borrowing is a business transaction with the government.

It is not out of appreciation of these conditions, of course, that 7,000 people daily visit the municipal pawnshops, but their business trip includes a knowledge of the fact that whatever profits will accrue to the establishments will finally go back to the people.

There is no haggling, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record. On jewelry four-fifths of the value of the object can be secured; on the other articles two-thirds. The interest is 7 per cent per annum. Should a borrower be in the unfortunate position of having paid interest for many years without being able to release the article the authorities will return it. When interest has not been paid the object in question goes to the auction, and then the righteousness of Paris pawnbroking is decidedly in evidence, for after the sale has been consummated and the original loan and interest are deducted from the money secured by the sale the surplus goes to the borrower. Should the money remain unclaimed it is turned over to the Paris hospitals, and, curiously enough, these hospitals profit to the extent of 100,000 francs a year.

When one has made a study of French pawnbroking laws it is easily seen that the first object served by these laws is to protect people who want immediate money advantages. France (and we may say France, for municipal pawnbroking is to be found in every corner of the country) cares little that many transactions are carried on at a loss. In one year of some 2,000,000 pawned articles in Paris 1,000,000 were effected at a loss, since no auction will bring a complete return on small objects. Of course this is offset by the return from loans on the other million articles, but should there be a deficiency the municipality has no hesitation in going down in its pockets and thus has an indirect mode of taxing the well to do to support the needy. Since no country has raised a cry against charity, this, as one form of it, can be passed without criticism. The fact is, money is lost on all loans under 20 francs.

The capital of the pawnshops consists of legacies, gifts and subventions of the state, department or the commune. Occasionally, as at Grenoble and Montpellier, the establishments are so well endowed that no interest is charged. Paris, for no unfathomable reasons, does the largest pawnbroking business on the continent, 34,000,000 francs being the average yearly pledges and 30,000,000 francs redeemed. The total revenue is 4,000,000 francs, the expense of management 1,500,000 francs, the interest on capital about 1,500,000 francs and the net profits 150,000 francs.

A Resourceful Legislator.

"It will be impossible for us to transact any public business tonight," said the president of the city council, "because of the lack of a quorum."

"Mr. Chairman," said the new member, arising quickly, "I have been elected on a pledge to my constituency that I shall work untiringly and unceasingly for the upbuilding and uplifting of our city, and I now and here move that a committee be appointed to consider the immediate purchase of as good a quorum as the market affords and that the committee be instructed to secure the quorum and have it properly installed by the next meeting night. And furthermore," he said, with a fine patriotic touch, "let us obtain a good American quorum and not one of those ancient Roman things!"—Success Magazine.

In the Swim.

A serious accident happened at the supper table. Somebody—it's always "somebody" who is to blame—upset a pitcher of water over the cloth. There was a general scampering and a calling for somebody to remedy the mischief.

"How could you be so careless, Tom?" cried Freddie indignantly.

"Never mind, my boy," replied Tom, in his airy way. "It's all right. We're all in the swim now."—St. Louis Republic.

Maybe It Didn't.

Tommy—I did wash my face. Mother—How dare you tell me that? Why, it's just as dirty as ever. Tommy—Well, I washed it, but maybe it didn't take. You know my vaccination didn't the first time.—Philadelphia Press.

A Case of Disbelief.

Bill—You look bad, Jim. Been laid up? Jim—Today's the first time out of doors for three months. Bill—What was the matter with you? Jim—Nothin', but the magistrate would not believe it.—London Telegraph.

The Easy Part.

"The doctor says you must stop eating meat and drinking whisky." "Well," replied the major, "meat never did agree with me."—Atlanta Constitution.

THE GARTER.

Insignia of the Most Coveted of All English Orders.

Although the most coveted of English orders, the origin of the Garter is really a mystery.

Conflicting authorities assign the foundation of the order either to the 23d of April, St. George's day, 1344, or to the same festival five years later, while the popular anecdote associated with it is that at a court ceremony a lady—either the queen, the Countess of Salisbury or the Countess of Kent—happened to drop her garter, which was picked up by King Edward III., who, observing a disposition to laugh among the bystanders, exclaimed in his royal displeasure, "Honi soit qui mal y pense" (disgraced be he who thinks ill of it).

The reigning monarch is, of course, ex officio the sovereign of the Order of the Garter.

At first the garter was made of light blue silk, but that which is now given is made of dark blue velvet. It is worn on the left leg a little below the knee.

The Order of the Garter as an order of chivalry has a very deep religious significance. It is, or should be, attended by religious ceremonies of a very precise and ornate character, and it was reported in Victoria's reign that a certain nobleman hesitated as to accepting the honor on account of its having been conferred on an oriental potentate.—Philadelphia North American.

CAME TO STAY.

Return of the Prodigal With Money and a Large Check.

Old home week had come, and the returned sons and grandsons were gathered together. One after another they rose and told with pardonable pride their achievements in the great world, impressing their importance on the stay at homes. At length Mr. Jameson spoke:

"I went away from here twenty years ago a poor young man, with only one solitary dollar in my pocket. I walked the four miles from my father's farm to the station, and there I begged a ride to Boston on a freight car. Last night I drove into town behind a spirited pair of horses, and my purse—guess how much my purse holds in money today, besides a large check," and Mr. Jameson looked about him with a smile.

"Fifty dollars!"

"Seventy-five!"

"A hundred!" shouted the boys, filled with admiration.

"No," said Mr. Jameson, drawing a large, flat purse from his pocket when the clamor had subsided, "none of you has guessed right. When I had paid the 25 cents to Ozzy Boggs for my refreshing drive in the coach I had, besides my trunk check (which I retained for financial reasons), exactly 4 cents. I have come back, my friends, to stay. Any little jobs of sawing and splitting will be gratefully received."—Woman's Home Companion.

Our Names Lack "Color."

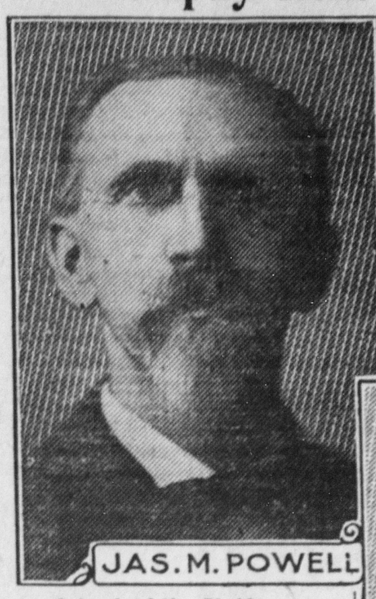
At an early period, and indeed well toward the beginning of modern history, proper names told something as to paternity, occupation and habitation. Today they are quite colorless. A new Ulysses would no longer be Laertides. No Peter indicates that he is the son of Paul. A Carpenter or a Weaver is likely to be a lily fingered stockbroker. Even the place names, complains the Nation, have pretty much disappeared, except in the case of nobility, and since the average gentle family has not for years lived on its titular estates or perhaps has had none at all our new Gastons de Foix give us a name as sapless as John Jones.—London Chronicle.

A Knockdown Argument.

A suburban school just opening for the season was composed of both city and country children. The teacher selected eight boys to debate the subject "Which Is Preferable, Country or City Life?"

After they had read many arguments with much enthusiasm Country Hugh laid down his paper and said: "Mr. President, they don't know what they're talkin' about. The city boy knows nothin' about 'going to town,' and that beats anything I know."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Kidney Disease, First Stage Promptly Relieved By Pe-ru-na.



THE first stage of Bright's Disease of the kidneys is known as the catarrhal stage.

Catarrh of the mucous membrane lining the kidneys is the first act of a drama that often ends as a tragedy.

To stop the catarrh is to head off the disease.

If Bright's Disease can be relieved during the catarrhal stage all will be well.

Peruna has achieved a reputation for mitigating catarrh of the internal organs.

This explains why Peruna has been used with so much success in kidney diseases.

Catarrh of the Bladder.

Mr. James M. Powell, 431 Kensington street, Kansas City, Mo., writes:

"About four years ago I suffered with a severe catarrh of the bladder which caused continued irritation and pain. I was miserable, and could not stand up or walk for any length of time without extreme weariness and pain.

"I began taking Peruna and it greatly relieved me, and in eleven weeks I was completely cured, and felt like a new man."

Kidneys and Liver Affected.

Mrs. Carrie King, 730 North Cascade, Colorado Springs, Col., writes:

"Peruna has been my favorite and only household remedy for nearly five years. I have suffered for years with biliousness, and kidney and liver trouble. If I caught a little cold, the pains were increased, and backache and headache were of frequent occurrence.

"However, Peruna cured me—twelve bottles made me a new and healthy woman. For three years I have enjoyed the best of health. I keep Peruna constantly in my home, if my husband or I catch cold or feel indisposed, a few doses of Peruna never fail to restore us."

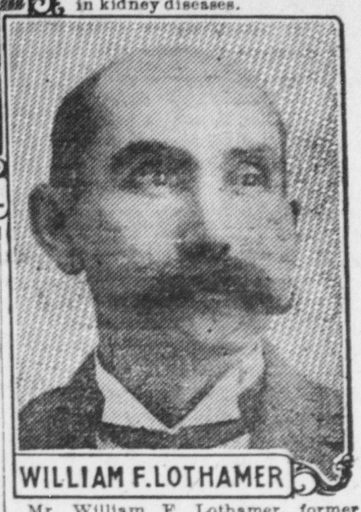
Mr. M. T. Gaffney, Corpus Christi, Texas, writes:

"I can certify to the truthfulness of Peruna as a catarrh cure, and am recommending it to every one. I am practically well of the catarrh in my nose, throat and head."



Mr. William F. Lothamer, former president of the Boss Barbers' Union, a noted politician and at one time chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, writes from 1906 South 4th Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.:

"For years I suffered with severe disease of the kidneys. I would have pains all over my body, and at times have such dizziness in my head that I could not see nor work.

"Nights I would often be awake with pain so I could get no rest. I spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and drugs, and had ceased to have faith in either.

"My druggist told me one day of the praise his customers gave to Peruna, and advised me to try it, offering to return my money if it did not help me. I purchased a few bottles. I kept getting better. The medicine did its work, and in four months I was a well man."

Baby Eaten Alive by Swarm of Big Rats

Helpless and alone in a second story room of his parents' home, 595 South Eleventh street, Philadelphia, George Whitehearst, the child's father, whose baby, met a horrible death Thursday morning by being eaten alive by a swarm of rats. Attention was attracted to the room by the smothered, frightened cries of the infant, Edward Whitehearst, the child's father, who was standing on the streets below, noticed something peculiar in the baby's cries and hurried upstairs.

As he opened the door there was a scurrying of rodents from the bed. Some of the rats were as big as kittens. Even through Whitehearst stamped and kicked at them, several of the more vicious animals continued to gnaw at the bleeding baby until the father drove them off with a stick. Then he picked up the mangled body and with his wife, who had just returned to the house, hurried him to the Pennsylvania hospital. There it was found that the baby was bitten in a hundred places and was most horribly mutilated. Although the doctors worked over him for several hours, the child died. Special Officer Moriarity, of the Nineteenth district, found that the house was infested with hundreds of rats of large size.

Mary Donle's Uncle Charged With Murder.

Lock Haven, Pa., Nov. 2.—The case of maltreatment and murder of Mary Donley, at Renova Tuesday night, took a sudden turn Saturday afternoon, when her uncle, William S. Donley, was formally charged with the murder before a local alderman. The prisoner was brought to Lock Haven on an early morning train and locked in a steel cage in the county jail

Donley was greatly affected and amid sobs stoutly protested his innocence. It is stated tonight that he is in a state of collapse, and likely to tell all he knows of the affair. It is claimed that he was the last man seen with the girl before murdered. The accused is the only brother of Mary's father, is 30 years of age and unmarried.

Interest Now Centers in the Donley Hearing.

There is nothing new to make public in the Donley murder case. The suspense is over in a measure, since the officials believe they have the right man, and interest now centres in the hearing, which will be held some time this week, and over which Alderman John P. Anthony will preside. Some of the evidence secured against William S. Donley, the murdered girl's uncle, will be brought out at that time and will be given to the public by the Republican. As a matter of fact, and for the best interests of all concerned the time for holding the hearing will not be given out, and will be known only to District Attorney Hipple, the alderman, representatives of local papers, witnesses and those directly concerned. In the meantime the public must have patience and should also remember that Donley is innocent until proven guilty.

The chief detective, with his assistants are still working on the case in order to secure a complete chain of evidence, and it will be a week or more yet before they complete their task. Should the evidence conclusively prove Donley to be guilty of the crime, it is almost certain that the detective who worked up the case and caused his arrest will decline to accept any portion of the rewards offered by the county commissioners or the people of Renovo, other than the payment of the bill he will present for services rendered.

Woman, 90 Years old, Jailed.

Grasping the rail about Magistrate Walker's desk and trembling, Ida Nosuch, who gave her age as ninety years and her residence at Fletcher street, in the Homewood section of Pittsburg, stood Tuesday morning, hardly able to speak in answer to the charge of being disorderly on the street. She had been arrested by a policeman, who found found her berating school children.

From the feeble, dishevelled woman who had been locked up all night in a police cell there emanated sounds that, after much difficulty, were formed into an explanation. She said she had been visiting and while on her way home had been tossed and taunted by the school children. She resented the youthful impertinence and was arrested.

James Nosuch, her husband, 92 years old, stood an anxious listener. His eyes flashed at times as he felt resentment at the seemingly disrespectful questions put to his wife. Finally when the woman was fined $5, he could no longer, and "spoke right out in meeting."

He, too, was placed in a cell with his wife. Later, the woman paid her fine, and her husband was freed with a caution.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

I love to tell the story
Of him who died for me,
Who gave his life a ransom,
That sinners might be free.

Go tell redemption's story
To all the world around,
How in the name of Jesus
Salvation may be found.

Go tell the heathen nations
The story of his love,
That he now reigns in Glory
At God's right hand above.

Give of your best to Jesus,
Who gave so much for you,
Be faithful in your service,
Be loving, kind and true.

State Overwhelms Dickinson Team.

Williamsport, Nov. 2.—On a field that was inundated by an average of three inches of water, State College Saturday afternoon administered an overwhelming defeat to Dickinson College. The total score was 55 to 0. State used end runs exclusively, and went around them at will. McCleary and Vorbis were the stars of the game, the former making five of the nine touchdowns, and the latter kicking two difficult field goals and making one of the touchdowns. He also kicked the only two goals from touchdowns. Burns, State's captain; Coulson and Zink were the others who carried the ball over Dickinson's goal for touchdowns.

Vorbis deserves credit for his remarkable kicking of field goals from a field covered with water. In one attempt the centre passed the ball high over his head, but he ran back and caught the ball and dropped it to the field and sent it squarely between the posts from the 45-yard line. The other was kicked from the 30-yard line. Dickinson was no match at any point in the game. They were roasted at every play and fell down on every attempt to gain their distance. The smallest crowd in the history of big college game ever played here was present.

State outweighed the Dickinson eleven by a few pounds to the man, which made chances greatly favorable before the game started, but after a few minutes of play it was apparent that Dickinson had no chance of even scoring. After two minutes of play McCleary carried the ball around right end for a touchdown. He ran free and away ahead of his interference. In the same manner the State men ran around the ends for long gains.

State tried nothing else but end runs when it became apparent that Dickinson could do nothing in their defense.

Dickinson, when they had the ball the few times that they were given an opportunity to try for distance, utterly failed to make any consistent gains.

"Quick lunch" is one of the commonest of city signs. The sign doesn't say "a healthy lunch of good food"—the character of the food apparently is not considered. It's just a quick lunch,—eat and get away. Is it any wonder that the stomach breaks down? Food is thrown at it' sloppy, indigestible and innutritious food, very often, and the stomach has to do the best it can. Normally there should be no need for medical assistance for the stomach. But the average method of life is abnormal and while this continues there will always be a demand for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the one medicine which can be relied on to cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a cure-all. It is medicine designed for the stomach, and to cure through the stomach remote diseases which have their cause in the weakness and derangement of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system. It cures when all else fails. Ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Wide Black Silks for Long Coats,

The command has been passed—Long Black Coats are to be the fashion for winter. Good reason. The vogue for transparent silks, voile, Nuns Veilings, Batist, Armure Cashmere and soon for dresses even for street wear, makes the wearing of such a coat essential. Wide black silk cuts to best advantage for these coats. Ready with an unusually large showing of best black silks, from best makers. OF GREAT BENEFIT TO COMPANY B.

Believes State Armory Board Would Then Provide Fine Pittsburg Building.

Backed by a big delegation of officers of the National Guard of Pensylvania, General Willis J. Hulings will go before the convention of the National Guard association at Wilkes-Barre, November 14, 15 and 16, and once more takes up the fight to have enlisted men of the National Guard paid for attendance at drill. For many years General Hulings has been fighting for a compensation for enlisted men, but until now he had not had sufficient support to carry out his project.

"I believe the project has now the support of 75 per cent of the officers of the National Guard," said General Hulings in discussinging the matter yesterday. "Why should a man give his time, shoe leather and expenses, such as car fare, in the support of the National Guard without some compensation? If the National Guard is an institution necessary to a great republic like ours, if the guard is a physical force that is to be a bulwark in defense of the Commonwealth in time of need, then let the people pay for it. It should not cost the boys a cent to belong to the guard. The manner of housing the companies in attics, lots and henneries is shameful."

General Hulings will urge before the convention that a scale for paying enlisted men be adopted so as to urge attendance at drills. It is proposed to pay 50 cents for one attendance at drill per month, $1.25 for two and $3.00 for four.

This pay is to compensate the men for car fare and shoe leather, and if they attend drills each week, the total compensation will allow them something for their time also. The general's plan does not have conditions to penalize an enlisted man for non-attendance. It is believed the system would be so successful that the attendance would be all that could be expected.

This system would require the making up of a regular payroll. The enlisted men would be paid at each encampment the amount of money due from drills as well as camp pay. But General Huling puts in one provision He proposes that no enlisted man be paid who does not qualify as a marksman at the rifle range. This system of compensation would encourage regular attendance at drills, as well as encourage qualifying at the rifle range and attendance at encampments. The three greatest troubles commissioned officers have in the Guard is the non-attendance of their enlisted men at drills and encampment and the difficulty of getting them qualified at the rifle range.

The Royal Month and the Royal Diseas.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative, —consumption.

Swartz—Robb.

On Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, Miss Clara Robb, daughter of Mrs. Alice Robb, of Bellefonte, and Thomas S. Swartz of Tusseyville, were united in the bonds of matrimony in Baltimore by Rev. Zimmerman, pastor of the Lutheran church of that city.

Both young people are well known throughout the county and their many friends are glad to hear of the happy event. Miss Robb is an accomplished, pretty young lady, and for some time has been an accomodating Commercial Telephone operator. The groom is a well known young man and for some time has been associated with his brother in the merchantile business in Tusseyville.

Following the ceremony the happy couple departed on a wedding tour to the Jamestown Exposition, Washington, D. C. and other places through the South. They expect to make their future home in Pittsburg. The Daily News joins with their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness.

WHY HE DOES IT.

Druggist C. M. Parrish Gives Reasons for Selling at Half-Price.

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicines put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said druggist C. M. Parrish to one of his many customers, "but I am glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that plan.

"The Howard Co., in order to get a quick introductory sale authorized Bellefonte to sell the regular fifty cent bottle of their specific for half-price, 25 cents. and although I have sold a lot of it, and guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory.

"One great advantage of this specic," he continued, "is its small dose and convenient form. There are sixty doses in a vial that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse, and every one has more medicinal power than a big pill or tablet or a tumbler of mineral water.

"I am still selling the specific at half-price, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so. Any person who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion, or a general played out condition, ought to take advantage of this opportunity. If the specific does not cure them, they can come right back to my store and I will cheerfully refund their money.

Dozed Seven Weeks Then Passed Away.

Physicians are discussing the case of Joseph Kosijus, of Patterson, N. J. who died yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital, after having slept seven weeks. Death resulted from exhaustion due to lack of nourishment.

The young man was brought to the hospital from Franklin Furnace and two days after his arrival fell asleep. He did not awaken for two weeks, when he took some light nourishment and went to sleep again. He awoke again last Thursday, but after twenty minutes returned to sleep and did not again awaken.

At the hospital it was said that the case resembled the African sleeping sickness.

Ayer's SARSAPARILLA. PILLS. CHERRY PECTORAL.

A Pathetic Scene.

Milford, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Dora Neuman, aged seventy-four years, was taken yesterday to the Eastern penitentiary by Sheriff Chol. The old woman, since her sentence of one year and six months in the Eastern penitentiary for the killing of her husband with a pitchfork, has cried almost continually.

In sentencing the old woman Judge Staples said: "We recognize that you are a woman on the verge of the grave and we recognize, above all, that you have a mother's love which, we think, has promoted you more than any other reason to take the position which you have in this case. We never have had a more disagreeable duty to perform since we have been on the bench than to sentence you, an old gray-haired woman. If there were any possible way to escape passing sentence upon you we would do it."

A Wasp's Mistake.

It is generally supposed that instinct unerringly teaches birds and insects the best way in which to build their homes or nests and also to provide for their offspring. The following incident will show that instinct is not always infallible:

A naturalist placed three small empty vials in an open box on a shelf in an upright position in close contact, and they were uncorked. A short time afterward it was a matter of surprise to find that these had been appropriated by a female mud wasp. She had placed a goodly number of spiders in the center vial, doubtless intended to serve as food for her future brood, then proceeded to deposit her eggs in those on either side. She next closed tightly the mouths of all the receptacles with a hard lime cement. Having finished her work, she then doubtless went on her way, satisfied all had been done for her offspring that a thoughtful mother could do. But just think of the sensations of those little wasps when they come into existence, for, while starving in their sealed cages, they can plainly see through the impenetrable glass walls the bountiful supply of food which was provided for their use.

A Bark For Barker.

The editor sat in his easy chair. Editors always have easy chairs—in fiction. He thought he recognized the handwriting on one of the envelopes. He sighed.

"Another poem," said he, reaching for the waste paper basket. He opened the letter. He was agreeably disappointed. It was prose. It ran as follows:

"A man named Barker had a dog that barked, so he called it Barker because it barked and because his own name was Barker. So the man was Barker, and the dog that barked was Barker. The man didn't bark, although his name was Barker. Barker and Barker went for a walk, and Barker barked—that is, dog Barker, not man Barker. In fact, dog Barker barked so much that man Barker said: 'Barker, don't bark so often. You never hear me bark.' Just then man Barker barked his shin on the bark of a tree and barked like anything."

The editor paused. There was a note inclosed, which ran, "Please send check for inclosed to me at 1001 Barker avenue, city." Then did the deus ex machina write, with a smile, "I have received your joke and will send check—when my bark comes in."—Judge.

Legend of St. Winifred Well.

A romantic legend hangs around St. Winifred well. Cradocus, a neighboring prince, smitten with the beauty of a Holywell damsel and roused to anger by her coyness, struck off her head as she fled from his unwelcome attentions. The head, rolling down the hill, rested near the church, and from the spot the present copious spring gushed forth as the earth opened to swallow up the assassin. St. Beuno, who was passing, picked up the head and, with a skill which is now lost to the medical profession, restored the maiden, with only a slender white line on her neck as evidence of the miracle. But not only did the well spring from the spot where the head rested, but the moss on its brink was supposed to be possessed of a particularly fragrant smell, while the blood marks on the stones assumed many beautiful tints on June 22, the anniversary of the event. Today the well is contained in a rectangular building, and the water flows into a large basin in the shape of an eight pointed star.—London Chronicle.

Handling Live Wires.

Never handle an electric wire (lest it be "alive") with the naked hand, but use a nonconducting substance as a protector. Any good nonconducting substance will supply protection.

Rubber—In form of gas stove tube or water hose, could be thrown over a wire to pull it from its connection with a live wire.

Porcelain—In form of a bit of common crockery or a floor tile, hand plate for door, a stone ink bottle.

Glass—A stout bottle, a glass rod or a pane of glass could be used to dislodge a wire from its connection with a trolley wire or other current feeder.

Wool—A woolen scarf, stocking, coat or wrap.

Cotton—Any piece of cotton garment or stout cotton twine.

Silk—Scarf or other garment.

Any of these materials in goodly thickness could be used to protect the hand in removing a live wire or even using an instrument to cut it through.

Spain's Canny Railroads.

In Spain the railroads do not lose a chance to make a little profit even in the case of the nontravelers. When you see somebody off in that country you must pay for the privilege. The railroads all sell billetes de anden, which are good for the platform only. These cost generally 5 centimos, equivalent to a cent in American money. Just why this is done it is hard to see, because persons entering a train cannot very well avoid the conductor, who is always making trips to inspect the carriages. If a person attempted to steal a ride in a carriage, he would have small chance of getting away with it. If caught, he would have to pay a penalty of just twice the fare between the point where he was discovered and the point where tickets last were inspected.—New York Sun.

He Had No Choice.

The wife of a dynamo tender went to a haberdasher's to buy a necktie for her husband. She selected a brilliant red one, ready made, whereupon the young and inexperienced salesman, with compassion for the future owner, was moved to remark:

"Excuse me, missus, is this tie for your husband?"

"It is," replied the woman.

"Don't you think he'd rather have some other color? I'm afraid he won't wear this red tie."

"Oh, yes, he will!" said the woman firmly. "He'll have to—he's dead."—London Answers.

The Irish Priest.

Stephen Gwynn has said somewhere excellently that the Irish priest possesses the secret of Irish life. He does, and so entirely is the key to it in his possession that I doubt if any genius, however great, could give an adequate rendering of Irish life without introducing the priest.—Katherine Tynan in Fortnightly Review.

A Discourager.

Miss Kreech—Some authorities believe that the practice of singing will keep a person from getting consumption. Mr. Knox—Yes, but most authorities believe in "the greatest good to the greatest number."—Philadelphia Press.

Hurt His Feelings.

She—I think Mr. Rymer, the minor poet, felt hurt at a remark you made the other night. He—What did I say? She—You said there was only one Shakespeare.—London Telegraph.

Curious Westmorland Custom.

A strange custom is observed yearly in the small hamlet of Week, in Westmorland, in commemoration of an incident that happened in the year 1841. That year there was a plague of wasps and many persons throughout the country succumbed to the poisonous sting. The little hamlet holds the record for its number of victims, and in memory of the occurrence a memorial tablet was erected on the moor there. Now each year there is a procession. Most of the inhabitants turn out, carrying insect powder and other devices for killing wasps, and march to the memorial stone, where a short service is held by the minister of the parish. When the service is over a general crusade is made in search of wasps' nests, which are immediately destroyed. Some carry guns, some rags saturated in turpentine, while others carry paraffin, which is poured into the nest and a match applied. The anniversary is considered the most important event of the year.—English Country Gentleman.

Dr. Todd's Joke.

An amusing example of the Irishman's pronunciation occurs in a story told of the late Dr. Todd, the Irish archaeologist, who, although a great scholar, was not above perpetrating a practical joke. The London Spectator tells the story and says:

A very learned Englishman went to Dublin to examine some manuscripts in the library of Trinity college and was of course introduced to Dr. Todd, who one day in conversation told him that there was in Trinity college a curious instance of the survival of a habit dating from the time of the Danes; that at a certain hour of the afternoon—I think 6 o'clock—a porter went the round of the college ringing a bell and calling out in a loud voice, "The Dane's in the hall," when all the students rushed from their rooms to repel the invaders. So the learned but somewhat incredulous Englishman repaired to the college at 6 o'clock, and, sure enough, what Dr. Todd had told him came to pass, which he gravely related on his return to England. The summons of course referred to the dean.

The Three Fates.

The names of the three fates were Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos. To express the influence which they were believed to exercise on human life from birth to death they were represented as spinning a thread of gold, silver or wool, now tightening, now slackening and at last cutting it off Clotho, the youngest, put the wool around the spindle, Lachesis spun it and the aged Atropos cut it off when a man had to die.

England's One Protestant Cathedral.

Truro cathedral is the only Established Church cathedral of any importance which has been built since St. Paul's was completed by Sir Christopher Wren. All the great cathedrals and abbeys in England were erected by Catholics and were handed over by act of parliament in the reign of Henry VIII. to the Protestants when the Catholic church was established and the Protestant religion created by law. —Reynolds' Newspaper.

What the Cloth Got In Boston.

If you go to San Francisco and meet a friend he will ask you to stay a week with him. In Omaha he will take you home overnight, in Chicago he will take you out to dinner, in New York he will hurry you off to lunch, in New Haven he will hand you a good cigar, and in Boston he will give you an apple.—Congregationalist.

"Not regular grafters," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "Those who get caught are only amateurs."—Washington Star.

Subduing Mother's Voice.

The successful merchant invited his parents to visit him in New York city. They came gladly and on the following Sabbath were escorted to a fashionable church in Fifth avenue. Some of the hymns were familiar. In their rendition the visiting pair contributed heavily, with the credit for volume in favor of the father. Although not always in correct time and sometimes in discord, yet the joy of this good couple leaped forth in joyous praise, and they did not see the glowering looks of nearby worshipers or the beetlike face of their devoted son.

"Father," explained the merchant that afternoon while his mother was taking her accustomed nap, "in our churches the congregations do very little singing. It is left entirely to the choir."

"I know, my boy," said the old man as he lovingly placed a hand on his son's shoulder, "that it was very embarrassing to you this morning, but if I hadn't sung as loudly as I did the people would have heard your mother."—New York Press.

Muskrats.

Rare old Captain John Smith in his quaint "History of New England and the Summer Isles," published in London in 1624, gives probably the first written account of the muskrat. He says that "the mussacus is a beast of the form and nature of our (English) water rat" and adds that "some of them smell exceedingly strong of musk." These animals may be caught in almost any sort of trap baited with sweet apples or parsnips. Muskrats have very strong teeth and can use them on wood effectively, so it is wise to protect all corners and cracks in your wooden traps with pieces of tin or sheet iron. They have good noses and can smell an apple a long distance off. Place your traps in the shallow water at the edge of the mill pond or stream inhabited by these rats, and they will doubtless find it without difficulty. Young muskrats are very gentle and playful and may be handled without fear. They do not grow fierce with age if reared in captivity and accustomed to gentle treatment.

Receiving Tommy.

There is a certain inspector of schools who prides himself on his original method of examining, but occasionally his originality receives a shock. In a fatherly manner he had gathered a class of young children round him and soon had their open mouthed attention.

"Now, suppose that you and I were playing a game of marbles," he said to little Tommy Jones. "You have ten marbles and I have eight."

The class gathered closer round.

"At the end of the game you have won half of my marbles, and of course I want to play again to win them back."

The children pressed even nearer.

"At the end of the second game I win half of those you now have. Tell me"—excitement waxed intense—"tell me," he continued, "how many marbles you are left with?"

With a look of inexpressible disgust the boy addressed fell back. "Why, Billy," he said, "blowed if it ain't sums."—London Answers.

Infant Prodigies.

In nine out of ten cases your infant prodigy is a musician. Among painters the prodigy of prodigies was Sir Thomas Lawrence. One of his earliest pictures, it is said, was produced in 1775, quite early enough, for the lovely cherub who painted it was then six years old. He was getting on in life, tottering on the verge of twelve, when the quality crowded his studio at Bath. The fates were kind to the infant prodigy when they made his father landlord of the Black Bull, Devizes, the inn where fashionable men and women called for rest and refreshment on their way to the waters. At the Black Bull the prodigy made his first acquaintance with the great world which flattered him in after life and which he flattered on canvas.—St. James' Gazette.

True Charity.

Every good act is charity. Giving water to the thirsty is charity. Removing stones and thorns from the road is charity. Exhorting your fellow men to virtuous deeds is charity. Smiling in your brother's face is charity. Putting a wanderer in the right path is charity. A man's true wealth is the good he does in this world. When he dies mortals will ask what property has he left behind him, but angels will inquire, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?"—Mohammed.

Good Actions.

When we have practiced good actions awhile they become easy. When they are easy we take pleasure in them. When they please us we do them frequently, and then by frequency of act they grow into a habit.—Tillotson.

This Boy a Mighty Hunter

Clinton county has a boy who outclasses President Roosevelt in killing bear this year. He is a young mountaineer and hails from Wheatham, 17 miles north of Lock Haven, and his name is Harold Wilson. He is 15 years old, a son of Andrew Wilson, and he has been hunting for large and small game ever since he was able to handle a gun. He has killed five black bears in the last ten days and killed the first of the season Thursday, October 17th, the second Tuesday of last week and Friday shot three.

While walking along a rocky cliff Friday he suddenly came upon an old mother bear and two cubs. The big bear fought desperately. Several bullets from the lad's rifle brought her to the ground and the quarry was killed with a club. The two cubs attempted to escape by climbing a tree, but they were slaughtered without much difficulty.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. SHEATZ HAS SCORED Nominee For Treasurer Has Made a Hit With the People.

CHAMPION OF THE SCHOOLS

Generally Commended For Successful Advocacy of An Additional Four Million Dollars For the Cause of Education.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Oct. 29.

John O. Sheatz, the Republican nominee for state treasurer, is about winding up a tour of the state in which he has scored at every place he has been.

He has shown himself to be a vote-getter. While he has none of the gifts of the trained orator with which to electrify an audience, he possesses to a remarkable degree an ability to impress everyone who hears him with his absolute sincerity of purpose and courage to carry out every pledge he has made.

With all the charges indulged in during the previous campaign regarding favoritism shown financial institutions that have gone upon the bond of the state treasurer, in the form of heavy deposits of state funds and security against unexpected withdrawals of such moneys, the voters of Pennsylvania must receive with gratification a declaration from Mr. Sheatz upon this subject.

A Popular Pledge.

Said Mr. Sheatz:

"As a piece of information to the people of Pennsylvania, I wish to say that if I am elected treasurer of this great state, when the time comes for me to file my bond for $500,000, I shall pay for it out of my own pocket, and not permit an obliging president of a trust company to arrange my security for me, thereby placing myself under obligation to that trust company to have $60,000 or $70,000 of the state's money constantly on deposit in that particular institution. I shall keep myself just as free from [illegible] of the money [illegible] of the political powers."

Mr. Sheatz's attitude in this matter has called forth expressions of hearty approval from every quarter. His candidacy is accepted as a guarantee that the office of state treasurer will be conducted upon the highest possible plane. With Edwin S. Stuart in the governor's chair and John O. Sheatz as state treasurer, the people of Pennsylvania will have reason to be proud of the Republican party's administration of its affairs.

Champion of Public Schools.

Probably no other act in the official career of Mr. Sheatz contributed more to his popularity than his advocacy of increased appropriations to the public schools. As chairman of the appropriation committee of the house of representatives, Mr. Sheatz made a valient and successful fight in favor of raising the already large sums appropriated to education, and in his visits to the various counties in his present tour Mr. Sheatz has been complimented upon the result of his labors at Harrisburg in this direction.

The Republican party of Pennsylvania has a grand record in its fostering and protecting influence in the cause of the common schools.

The statistics show that since 1887 the enormous sum of $119,100,000 has been appropriated by Pennsylvania legislatures dominated by the Republican party, an amount many times larger than that appropriated for like purposes by any state in the Union for public school purposes.

The appropriation for the years 1887-88 was $2,000,000; for 1889-90 it was $4,000,000, and for each two years from that time until this year, with one exception, the appropriation was $11,000,000, the exception being in 1902-01, when the amount was $10,000,000.

When the legislature met this year Mr. Sheatz was among the potential factors in a movement to provide even more liberally for the schools, and with the hearty co-operation of the influential leaders of the Republican party this agitation was a fruitful one. The sum of $4,000,000 was added to the state school fund, raising the grand total to the unprecedented appropriation of $15,000,000 for the next two years.

This amount does not include the $6,500,000 specially set aside for school purposes from the local taxes collected in the city of Philadelphia, nor the large amounts raised locally in other counties.

The money included in the state appropriation to the schools is allotted to the different counties in proportion to the number of children of school age, each county receiving its pro rata share. In nearly all of the counties the amount received from the state has proved amply sufficient to meet all of the requirements of the public schools, so that in such cases it is not necessary to apply any of the money received from local taxation.

"I want to see the day," said Mr. Sheatz a few nights ago, "when the state will provide every penny of the money needed for educational purposes. The aim of the Republican party has been in that direction, and I know that the continued success of Republicanism in Pennsylvania means the accomplishment of that end.

"I shall certainly continue to do all in my power to have ample money appropriated to place the public schools of our state upon a solid and practical basis in every county of the state."

Naturally.

Two men met at the gate of the cemetery, and each with excessive politeness bowed to the other to pass in before him. After a few minutes of this, when neither would give way, the younger of the two smiled and said:

"You are the elder of the two, so naturally you ought to go first."—Sourire.

Maximilian and "La Paloma."

Wherever that haunting air, "La Paloma," is played the memory of the Emperor Maximilian, shot by the Mexicans on June 19, 1867, should be preserved. Maximilian's final request was that "La Paloma" should be played while he stood up to meet his doom. He died with the tune in his ears, and his wife went mad with the shock of his execution.

The Black Sea.

The Black sea differs in a most remarkable manner from other lakes and seas. A surface current flows continually from it into the Mediterranean and an undercurrent from the Mediterranean into the Black sea. The latter current is salt and, being heavier than the fresh water above it, becomes stagnant at the bottom. Being saturated with sulphureted hydrogen, this water will not maintain life, and so the Black sea contains no living thing below the depth of about a hundred fathoms. Its area is 168,500 square miles, it is 740 miles long, and its greatest width is 390 miles.

Desiring and Attaining.

Between desire and attaining, all human life flows on throughout. The wish is, in its nature, pain; the attainment soon begets satiety, the end was only apparent; possession takes away the charm, the wish, the need, presents itself under a new form when it does not; then follow desolateness, emptiness, ennui—against which the conflict is just as painful as against want. That wish and satisfaction should follow each other neither too quickly nor too slowly, reduces to the smallest amount the suffering which both occasion, and constitutes the happiest life.—Arthur Schopenhauer.

They Both Pitch.

Which is the greater marvel, the crack baseball pitcher or the circus man? The baseball star, to be sure, pitches a ball with wonderful facility, but the circus man pitches a tent.—Boston Globe.

Whose Say-so Is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone and exclusively as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives.

Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to the above rule. Their claim to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their owners' and makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle-wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

In favor of Dr. Pierce's medicines is the frank, confiding, open, honest statement of their full composition, giving every ingredient in plain English, without fear of successful criticism and with confidence that the good sense of the afflicted will lead them to appreciate this honorable manner of confiding to them what they are taking into their stomachs when making use of these medicines.

WHAT THEY CURE. People often ask "What do Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines—'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription' cure?"

Briefly, the answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative, or blood-purifier, and tonic, or invigorator, and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder curing a large percentage of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is generally successful in affecting cures. In fact the "Golden Medical Discovery" is without doubt, the most successful constitutional remedy for all forms of catarrhal diseases known to modern medical science. In Chronic Nasal Catarrh Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid should be used for washing and cleansing out the nasal passages while taking the "Discovery" for its blood cleansing and specific, healing effects upon the mucous lining membranes. This combined local and general treatment will cure a very large percentage of the worst cases of chronic nasal catarrh, no matter of how many years' standing they may be.

As to the "Favorite Prescription," it is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those weaknesses, derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. It is a powerful, yet gently acting, invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, strong, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most of our obstinate and most fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and, in confirmation of this firm conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weakness and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of leucorrhea, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines had failed.

Both these world-famed medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots, found in our American forests. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. What is said of their power to cure the several diseases for which they are advised may be easily learned by sending your name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a little booklet which he has compiled, containing copious extracts from numerous standard medical books, which are consulted as authorities by physicians of the several schools of practice for their guidance in prescribing. It is FREE TO ALL. A postal card request will bring it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce, over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Encouragement.

De Laye—I'm a mum-mum-man who nun-nun-never says dud-dud-die, dud-dud-don't you know?

Mrs. Goode—Well, never mind. You certainly try hard enough to do so.—Life.

Inside Information.

A woman who is trying to "climb" into Washington society attended a recent reception at the house of Mrs. Taft. The crowd was so great that guests were hurried along the line of the receiving party, with merely a handshake with the wife of the secretary of war. The "climber," with determination written on her face, finally pushed her way up to her hostess and paused long enough to say, "How do you do, Mrs. Taft?" adding, with a very impressive manner, "I've heard of your husband."—Lippincott's.

A Palpable Hit.

"Daudet," said the late Richard Mansfield, "in his charming book called 'Artists' Wives,' shows us how the actor, the painter and the poet are tormented by their better halves. But has it never occurred to you that there is another side to the question? Don't the actor, the painter and the poet sometimes do a deal of tormenting themselves?

"I have a friend, a playwright. His wife is good and beautiful. Last New Year's eve he said to her at dinner:

"'Darling, I cannot begin the new year better than by confessing my turpitude to you. Know, then, that ours was a bigamous and illegal marriage. My real wife, with her three children, is living in Denver.'

"The lady ran distractedly from the room.

"'Calm yourself,' the playwright shouted as he put down his knife and fork and hurried after her. 'That isn't really true. It is only a speech that the villain makes to the heroine in my new play, and I wanted to get some idea as to how the heroine would take it.'"

Everything Belonged to the Boss.

An old bachelor who lives in the suburbs of a southern city hires a colored man to clean up his room, fill the lamp and perform like services.

"Boss, our blackin' am done out," said the darky to his employer one day.

"What do you mean by saying 'our blacking?' Everything belongs to me. I want you to understand that nothing belongs to you."

On the following Sunday the bachelor met the colored menial, accompanied by a chocolate colored female pushing a baby carriage.

"Was that your baby in that carriage?" he asked next day.

"No, boss; dat's not our chile. Dat's your chile. I's nebber gwine to say nuffin belongs to me no moah."—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Ethical Distinction.

Representative Robinson of Indiana was declaiming on the beauties of nature. "I love to see the early morning sunshine kiss the dome of the capitol, paint it golden and make it look glad."

"I'll bet you $10 you never saw it," said Representative Ruppert of New York.

"My son," replied Robinson, "this is a poetical, not a bookmaking, proposition."

Hard to Be Just to a Rival.

John B. McDonald, builder of New York's subway, was seeking to escape a direct opinion about another contractor.

"It is rather too much to ask of human nature to be just to a rival," he said. "I once had in my employ a laborer, and a good worker he was, whose activities were cut short by a premature blast. I overheard two of his friends discussing the victim.

"'It's an awful thing, Paddy, the way poor Dinny was tuk,' observed Casey.

"'It is, it is,' replied Paddy feelingly. 'A fine man was Dinny.'

"'He was thot.'

"'And a fine shoveler.'

"'He was a good shoveler,' admitted Paddy.

"'As good a shoveler as youse find in a year's lookin'.'

"'He was a good shoveler—a good shoveler, he was, but he was not what you would call a fancy shoveler.'"

An Evasive Answer.

A lady, sending a green servant to answer the doorbell, said, "If anybody asks if I am in, give an evasive answer."

"Who was it?" asked the mistress when the servant returned.

"A gentleman who wanted to see you, ma'am, and I gave him an evasive answer."

"What did you say?"

"I asked him if his grandmother was a monkey."

Papa Is Brave.

Elschen—Mamma, is papa ever brave? Mother—He is always brave, I hope. But what makes you ask? Elschen—Because I thought if he were he wouldn't let my governess pull his ears so.—Fliegende Blatter.

Lincoln's Sarcasm.

Probably the most cutting thing Lincoln ever said was the remark he made about a very loquacious man: "This person can compress the most words into the smallest ideas of any man I ever met."

Certain Differences.

"Do they never forget their differences?"

"Why, yes, in a way. He forgets that he's a gentleman, and she forgets that she's a lady."—Puck.

—Impure blood runs you down—makes you an easy victim for organic diseases. Burdock Blood Bitters purifies the blood—cures the cause—builds you up.

Thomas A. Edison, the great American inventor, says "Fully eighty per cent of the illiness of mankind comes from eating improper food or too much food; people are inclined to over-indulge themselves". This is where indigestion finds its beginning in nearly every case. The stomach can do just so much work and no more, and when you overload it, or when you eat the wrong kind of food, the digestive organs cannot possibly do the work demanded of them. It is at such times that the stomach needs help; it demands help, and warns you by headaches, belching, sour stomach, nausea and indigestion. You should attend to this at once by taking something that will actually do the work for the stomach. Kodol will do this. It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Paxton Cowdrick is quite ill at his home on Curtin street, threatened with typhoid fever.

—About eighteen Bellefonte women went to Hecla on Wednesday evening and took supper at the country club

—Thomas Shoemaker has purchased the Reeder house on north Allegheny street, the consideration being $8,000.

—Miss Crecia Williams entertained a number of her young friends Friday evening at her home on Linn street.

—Next year Washington's birthday Memorial Day and the Fourth of July all fall on Saturday, giving the public three "double holidays."

—Mrs. Rothrock of Buffalo Run Valley has bought the Cherry homestead on Valentine street and will move from her country home to Bellefonte in the near future.

—Edward Brown, of Millheim, has accepted a position with the Pennsylvania telephone company in this place to fill the vacancy caused by the resigna- of Charles Donachy.

—Mr. William Royer has moved from the house on Water street to the Irwin Property on Spring St. Mr. Frank Kerns the laundryman has moved to the house formerly occupied by Mr. Royer.

—Mrs. Thressa Tate, who several weeks ago fell and broke her hip bone and was taken to the Bellefonte hospital for treatment, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to the home of her daughter Mrs. Geo. A. Beezer on Howard St.

—If reports are correct at least a half dozen weddings are booked to take place in Bellefonte between this and Christmas. And considering the number that have occurred recently leads to the conclusion that Mr. Cupid must have been working overtime.

—On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock Miss Sidney Henson was united in marriage to Mr. Charley Ross by the Rev. Herrington of the A. M. E. church. The young people come from two of the best colored families in Bellefonte and we wish them joy and happiness through life.

—Miss Winifred Gates the estimable daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Gates, of Bellefonte is now the efficient stenographer in the law office of James Furst, Esq. Miss Gates is an exceptionally bright and talented young lady who will certainly make her "mark" in chosen vocation.

—Mrs. Hugh S. Taylor entertained fourty guests at her home on Linn street on Thursday evening at a Hallowe'en party. The evening was spent in a most delightful manner in playing "500." Music was another feature of the evenings pleasure. Excellent refreshments were served.

—The Bellefonte hospital is being completed as rapidly as possible, and it will not be many more weeks until it will be ready for occupancy. The hospital is over crowded with patients and the final work on the new addition will be hailed with delight by the matron and the nurses who have had a good deal to contend with during the last few months.

—A Kansas man is convinced that advertising pays. He advertised for a lost five-dollar bill, and a stranger, who had picked up one on the streets, read the advertisement and restored the bill to the advertiser. A few days later, while looking over a vest he had laid off, the original bill was found in a pocket. He says advertising pays 100 per cent.

—There is probably not a better farmer in Bald Eagle Valley than Jerome B. Confer, on Marsh Creek. This year he has a field of corn which averages fourteen feet eight inches in height, with the ears nine feet from the ground. Of course it all had to be cut in order to husk it, as no ordinary man could reach the ears. Mr. Confer also has an unusually abundant crop of apples.

—Thursday Mervin S. Betz, of Jacksonville, sold to Thomas A. Shoemaker, of Bellefonte and Rembrandt Peal, of Cambria county, the limestone on his farm located in Marion township, near his home. The consideration was $9000. Mr. Betz retained the land on which is still a nice farm. The transaction has placed Mr. Betz on "Easy Street for the balance of his life. It is stated that the American Lime & Stone Co. had an option on this limestone but the day it expired Shoemaker and Peal slipped in and made the purchase. The limestone in Centre county is getting valuable and the man who wants it and hesitates is the man who will get left.

—Joseph Twitmyer is shipping his household goods to Sunbury where he and his family expect to make their future home.

—The bricklayers expect to have Conrad Miller's house ready for the roof in two weeks and in the meantime the Miller family are boarding at Kyle McFarlane's.

—We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Elwood Brooks formerly of Centre Hall but now of Altoona is seriously ill with typhoid fever. Mrs. Brooks' maiden name was Miss Edith Lutz.

—A little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs Chester Irvine of Lake Charles La., on October 15th. Mrs. Irvine's maiden name was Miss Ottilie Hughes, daughter of Rev. James P. Hughes of Bellefonte.

—Forty-five boys attended the Hallowe'en reception at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night, A program of sports was carried out in the gymnasium after which the boys had a "band out" of apples, doughnuts and peanuts. The boys say they had a fine time.

—Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Christ Beezer and Miss Mary Kelley, which will take place on Thursday, November 14th. Mr. Beezer has rented the McQuistion house on Thomas street and they will go to housekeeping there.

—Harry Todd and Howard Holtzworth, of Philipsburg, while returning from a pheasant hunt near Black Moshannon, on Friday afternoon, saw two does crossing the road at Gravel Hill, just above McCord's dam. They report phessants as being very scarce, having only one bird each during the day.

—Mrs. J. A. Decker entertained a number of friends at her home on Bishop street last Thursday evening at a party. And also in celebration of Hallowe'n Miss Carolyne Anderson gave a taffy party at her home on Bishop street. Of course both proved very pleasant gatherings to those present.

—A Punxsutawney school girl was required to write an essay of 250 words about an automobile. She submitted the following: "My uncle bought an automobile. He was riding in the country when it busted going up a hill. I guess this is about 50 words. The other 200 are what my uncle said when he was walking back to town, but they are not fit for publication."

—Mrs. Sarah A. Rider celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday by a family reunion at her home at Gatesburg on Thurday of last week. The gathering included all her children, twenty-three grand children and eight great grand-children, about forty people in all. The occasion proved a most enjoyable one and quite naturally it was the wish of all that there may be many more such pleasant reunions.

—The chief of police of Sharon, Pa., was arrested on Wednesday on a charge of assault and battery preferred by Katherine Mori. The girl swore Scharff pursued her up a flight of stairs and when he overtook her threw his arms around her neck and kissed her. Justice Peter Cook postponed the case until Thursday night and in the meantime will study over whether kissing constitutes an assault.

—Joseph Wade, of Snow Shoe was in town Saturday, and accompanied his wife home from the Lock Haven hospital, where she was a patient for the past four weeks, having undergone a serious surgical operation. Mr. Wade wishes this paper to express his high appreciation of the kindness and many courtesies extended his wife at the hospital by the superintendents, nurses and attendants, and of the skill of the physicians. In fact, Mr. Wade cannot speak too highly of the careful attention his wife received, which was instrumental in restoring her health.—Lock Haven Democrat.

—On Monday Mr. John Bair who for the past 18 years has been one of our efficient mail carriers will lay aside the mail sack and take up a clerical position in the Post Office. Mr. Bair will be succeeded on the mail route by Mr. John Garthoff who has been a substitute for many years and who is fully qualified to fill this responsible position. Mr. Bair will be greatly missed by the people who he came in contact with daily as he was always obliging and courteous and has won the highest respect of every one in Bellefonte. His new position in the Post Office will undoubtedly be more pleasant We wish him success and we know he will fill the bill to perfection.

—There is little excuse for the exsistance of tramps in this section, and the men who are bumming about the country out of employment, are doing so from choice rather than from necessity. Farmers have been complaining of scarcity of help; contractors in many cities cannot procure a sufficient number of men to carry out their construction work. The railroads are short of help, and in fact there are openings for all who want work. The able bodied man who goes begging from town to town, few of which species have made their appearance in this section of late, should be reminded of this fact rather than encouraged in their idle course by gifts from those of whose bounty they ask.

—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gray have moved from the Criders Exchange to the Hays property on Curtin street.

—George D. Fox & Sons, the well known painters of Lock Haven, have a big crew of men on the work of the new State College Agricultural building, at State College. This firm is painting the exterior of the building, as well as the finishing of the interior. The job will continue for some time.

—The Bellefonte Academy will buck up against the strong Lock Haven Normal foot ball team Saturday. The Academy team has been wonderfully strengthened the last week by a dandy good little player from Jersey Shore. They are going to Lock Haven, with the full expectation of putting the bumps to the Normal boys.

—Philip Shaw a young brakie from Snow Shoe had just started to work this morning on the extra shifter when he was thrown from a car and pretty badly bruised. Conductor Kellegher reported him off duty. The young fellow went home to nurse his injuries a few days. Phil is a good brakeman but accidents will happen to the best of them.

—The milk men of Bellefonte will be stung when the dairyman from out of town begins to ship his milk in for 6 cents a quart. Some of the hotels are buying cows while a great many people are buying condensed milk from the grocery men. The people out on Methodist Hill have stopped using the liquid altogether. The people on the outskirts of the town are buying goats.

—On account of the great amount of lime stone being shipped from the quarries around Bellefonte the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has found it necessary to put on an extra engine and crew in the Bellefonte yards. One crew will operate from the White Rock yards and the other from the American Lime & Stone Co's operations below town. The engineer is Homer Noll, fireman Joseph Adams, conductor George Sheckler.

—Miss Katharine Brisbin who has been the efficient organist at the Presbyterian church the past three years has resigned her position. The members of this church and others who attend this house of worship will feel very sorry to hear of Miss Brisbin's resignation, as she has proven herself to be one of the best organist the Presbyterians have ever had. We hope some day she will take hold of this department of the service again at this church.

DREAD WHITE PLAGUE.

The State is Ready to Fight the Awful Disease—Dispensaries Established in Many Counties.

With the establishment of 67 dispensaries in as many counties, Pennsylvania will soon have well under way one of the most vigorous and most comprehensive campaigns against tuberculosis that has ever been organized.

In accordance with the provisions of the law passed by the last legislature, Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, commissioner of health is now establishing a dispensary in every county in the state. His special assistant in organizing the work is Dr. Thomas H. A. Stites.

An exceedingly important feature of the work will be the system of home inspection and instruction by visiting nurses. A nurse specially instructed and trained in the hygiene of tuberculosis will be sent to visit the home of each and every patient applying to the dispensary for treatment.

It will be her province to thoroughly instruct the patient upon such important points as the amount of fresh air needed, the most desirable foods, when they should be taken, and how they should be taken. She will teach the patient and the other members of the household how to conduct themselves so as to avoid the infection of those not already suffering from tuberculosis.

The nurse will see to it that the sputum or expectoration of the patient is properly collected and either burned or so disinfected as to be harmless. She will urge on all members of the family and any other person with whom she may come in contact the great danger of spitting upon streets, in railroad stations, street cars and other public places.

This visiting nurse will be instructed to search out and inspect every member of the household in which a consumptive resides, and wherever there is the slightest sign of ill health she will do her best to persuade the suspected person to come to the dispensary for examination.

In this way it is confidently hoped that the dispensary will be able to discover hundreds of cases of tuberculosis in the very earliest stages, and at a time when cure is not only possible but probable. To the physician who deals with consumption in sanitarium and dispensary work it is a most difficult problem to know how to get hold of patients early in the course of the disease. It is here that those in charge of the dispensary work hope to do great good.

A dispensary has been established in Bellefonte at the office of Dr. George F. Harris on East High street, and any one afflicted with this disease in any form should not hesitate in consulting Dr. Harris in regards to the case. The office hours are 1.30 to 2.30 on Tuesday's and Friday's.

The Odd Fellow's Entertainment.

The Odd Fellows of the Central Pennsylvania District are erecting a new building at the Home farm near Sunbury for the accomodation of more Orphans of deceased brothers, and also are preparing to eventually use the present buildings for aged Odd Fellows and their wives. The funds needed to complete the new building are not yet all in hand. We will want $5000. by the 1st of January to pay the contractor. For the purpose of raising additional funds the children of the Home will give an entertainment in the Garman opera house on Monday Nov. 11th 1907, under the auspices of Centre Lodge 153.

The Committee who have this matter in charge earnestly urge and request every Odd Fellow, members of Centre Lodge and members of other Lodges in this vicinity, to use his influence in making this entertainment a grand success. The entertainment will be a splendid one. Twenty-eight of the best and brightes boys and girls will take part. You can assure your friends that this will be a treat, and an evening spent with the Orphans will be something to be long remembered.

The price of admission will be 25, 35 and 50. Every reserved ticket will insure a seat. Brother, you will assure the success of this matter by purchasing one or more tickets and urging others to do the same.

Brothers this is a grand and great cause to which you are asked to take some part in. It is a cardinal principal of our great order to "EDUCATE THE ORPHAN" and care for him in his father's place. Now is our opportunity to DO, let us do it RIGHT and in a way that it means something. Some day our beloved ones may need the protection this home will afford,

Monday Nov. 11th is the day, at 8 p. m.

Fraternally yours,
A. Luckenbach.
C. T. Gerberick.
W. C. Cassidy.
Committee.

OUR BORO FATHERS.

The Regular Semi-Monthly Meeting Monday Evening.

The regular semi-monthly session of council was held on Mondy evening. In the absence of President Keller the chair was very acceptably filled by Dr. Kirk. The others present were Messrs. Shuey, Wagner, Beezer, Brown, Judge, Hamilton.

The minutes of the the previous meeting were read and approved.

Fire and Police committed reported fire at Conrad Miller's and also in the rear of Gen. Beaver's home. Four dollars rent for old Undine Building was turned in.

Street committee reported progress on Howard street sewer.

The Treasurers report showed a balance in the hands of the treasurer of about $6,000.00.

Mr. P. F. Keichline asked for a crossing over Water street to their machine shop. Street is in a very bad condition.

Howard street is to be repaired from Allegheny to Ridge. The street is to be shaped up and covered with crushed lime stone, the cost not to exceed $75.00.

Council decided they had no further use for a stable as a pound and Geo. R. Meek, trustee from whom the stable is rented was ordered to be so notified.

Dr. Kirk called the attention of council to the conduct of the members of the police force, of which there has been considerable complaint of late, and asked what action they intended to take. Mr. Shuey also took the matter up and said that some action should be taken. Chairman Brown of the Fire and Police committee, while not excusing the accused policemen, yet explained the matter in the best light possible and pleaded the cause in a very strong manner. Council finally decided to reprimand the police officer complained of and notify him that if any such actions occurred again he would be discharged from the force.

The following bills approved and orders drawn.

Street Pay Roll	$227.25
Street Pay Roll	$35.30
Police Pay Roll	$52.50

Enter "The Toymakers."

The new story by Charles Felton Pidgin which he calls "The Toymakers" and from which he has constructed a musical absurdity with the same title, has material in it which assures it a long life. One needs no introduction to its author, as a former work of his, "Quincy Adams Sawyer," has been laughed over in every part of the country and its dramalized form has been called "the best New England play ever written." Every one who has seen Mr. Pidgin's new musical absurdity will endorse the judgement that it is destined to equal his former success in popularity which is by way of saying that it ranks with the very best. "The Toymakers" is booked for Garman's on Friday, November 15, and will be limited to a stay of one night only.

The company formed for its production is called "The Jollities" and is under the management of Charles F. Atkinson and James Thatcher. The scenes are laid in the shop of an old toymaker in England and the situations are so genuinely funny with such bright and sparkling wit that the interest of the audience is wrought to a high pitch. The impersonation of a mechanical doll by the belle of the village is most amusing and the queer complications can be imagined.

Small wonder such should be the case for its jollity, its witty and refined text and unusually attractive music, twenty-six number in all, make it one of the strongest attractions on the stage that has been seen for many a day.

William Rhinesmith Almost Killed.

Saturday morning a car of pea coal was shoved in on the C. R. R. of Pa. coal wharf for R. B. Raylor the coal dealer, and William Rhinesmith who is employed by Mr. Taylor was in the act of unlocking the big hopper underneath the car, when the plank he was standing on broke and he fell under the car, at the same time the coal began running from the car and before he could escape he was buried under the fuel, his yells attracted other men employed by Mr. Taylor to the scene and they worked earnestly to save Rhinesmith's life.

They got the unfortunate man out just as many tons of coal flowed from the car. Mr. Rhinesmith was pretty badly bruised over the body and was almost sufficated when rescued. Had it not been for the timely assistance and hard word of the other men he would have been killed.
